JFK Faces Trouble On Tax Cut

WASHINGTON (AP)—

President Kennedy asked the U.S. Congress Monday for an unprecedented $13,500,000,000 tax slash to help assure cold war victory against a Communist empire in "disarray."

The president's proposed tax cut would be accompanied by a slash in all federal spending except for defence and space.

TROUBLE?

First reaction indicated the president will have trouble convincing the divided congressmen not of the desirability of the record-size tax cut but of its economic wisdom and feasibility.

Applause broke out many times as he delivered his third state-of-the-union message to a joint session of Senate and House of Representatives but handclapping for the tax-cutting package was only scattered. It came mostly from the Democrats—and not from all of them.

NOT NOW

Many congressmen have called for economies to offset any tax cuts, but Kennedy told the position that this cannot be done now. He predicted, however, that his plan would lead in time to "a balanced budget in a balanced full employment economy."

The tax reduction, biggest in history, would become effective in three annual stages, between 1963 and 1965. About $11,000,000,000 of the savings would go to individual taxpayers; the rest to corporations. The first-step reductions would take effect this year and would be at an annual rate of $5,000,000,000—but the total reduction for 1963 would

Car Falls 100 Feet Driver Still Baffled

A man who survived a 100-foot drop on West Coast Road Saturday night told the Colonist yesterday he couldn't describe exactly what happened.

"There wasn't much time to think about anything," said Robert McGeachy, 37,

Jordan River Hotel, a miner at Cowichan Copper Mine. His car went out of control about a mile east of Point-No-Point, plunged down the bank and was totally demolished.

Mr. McGeachy escaped without a scratch. "It took me 10 minutes to climb back to the road," he said.

Mr. McGeachy was on his way to pick up a friend in Victoria when the crash occurred. They were going on midnight shift at the mine.

After a three-minute wait he caught a lift back to Jordan River and called police.

Loud Red Hurrah

EAST BERLIN (Reuters)—

Soviet Premier Khrushchev arrived here Monday night to attend the East German Communist party congress opening today and declared that the Communist wall dividing Berlin represented Communist "success."

He added "I shall shout a loud hurrah when capitalism is buried."

Khrushchev bounded to the station platform and gripped East German Communist leader Walter Ulbricht by the hand. Khrushchev grinned broadly and embraced Ulbricht five times.

The party congress was widely expected to be a showdown with Communist China over ideology and foreign policy differences.

Khrushchev said that since his last visit three years ago the Berlin wall had been built and he added: "This is our success."

Khrushchev then mentioned West German Chancellor Adenauer and contrasted the "aging" system of capitalism with "sprightly" socialism.

"I shall shout a loud hurrah when capitalism is buried."

"We will not have a war in order to bring the Socialist system of society to another country because we think that this is an internal matter for each country."

Hope to Where?

FREEDOMITES SAY GOODBYE

HOPE (CP) — Sons of Freedom Doukhobors threw a goodbye party Monday night for the people of this Fraser Valley village.

They arranged a program of choral singing and speeches of thanks, apparently to make it official that they are finally breaking camp after three months.

Where they are going is a mystery. As they took inventory Monday one of their spokesmen, Mrs. Florence (Big Fanny) Sibergoff, said simply:

"MOVING WEST"

"Tell them we're moving west."

A member of the special RCMP detachment that has been assigned to them for months said:

"I get the feeling they know exactly where they are going, but I don't think the leaders have told the rest. This is one of the most closely-guarded secrets they've had since the trek began last summer."

"It could be Stanley Park in Vancouver, Mountain Prison near Agassiz, or the grounds of the legislative buildings in Victoria."

ACASSIZ? — Nor would Mrs. Sibergoff say when they would move, but the state of preparations indicated it would be soon. In the past, the Sons have begun their moves from one spot to the next generally on Sundays.

Meanwhile, village chairman Paul Scheele, who led a group of the Doukhobors to Victoria to seek provincial aid recently, said he had no idea of their present destination.

Speed Reduced Pupils Return

Parents of Mount Benson School pupils decided last night to send their children back to school after Highways Minister Gaglardi cut the speed limit to 40 miles an hour on the Island Highway at Jingle Pot Road in Wellington where a child was killed by a truck recently.

His decision was announced hours after a delegation of Wellington parents emerged from a two-hour meeting with Mr. Gaglardi, disappointed that they failed to get approval of a school crossing underpass.

ALREADY CUT

The speed limit on this stretch of road was recently reduced to 50 miles an hour from 60.

Mr. Gaglardi also announced a highways department employee will operate a push-button signal light at the Jingle Pot crossing for two weeks, and double "no passing" lines will be painted on both sides of the intersection.

FAILURE

Frank Murphy, spokesman for the Wellington group and father of a youngster who must use the controversial crossing, said the delegation wanted an underpass and anything short of that was a failure.

In an unanimous decision the parents passed two resolutions.

He said he thought no child under 10 should be allowed to take a bicycle onto a highway and asked B.C. parents to make a reappraisal of their children's habits in relation to traffic safety.

The minister said from all information he has received on the Nanaimo accident it was in no way attributable to the type of school crossing.

Mr. Gaglardi, father of two boys, asked if he allowed them on the highway with bicycles at the age of six, replied: "If I did that I'd want my head examined."

Triple Nuclear Rule Norstad Proposal

WASHINGTON (CP) — Gen.

Lauris Norstad Monday night proposed a North Atlantic nuclear force under the operational control of Britain, France and United States with each power retaining physical custody over their contributed warheads.

In an apparent effort to end French opposition to a NATO nuclear force, the recently-retired NATO supreme commander said his proposal should go "some distance" towards meeting the special requirements of France. "Since it recognizes the special position of the three NATO nations possessing a nuclear capability,"

DEMANDS — French President de Gaulle, while rejecting the American-proposed Polaris seaborne multi-lateral force, has demanded that Britain and the United States recognize his "equal voice" in controlling and directing NATO.

Norstad, feted at a farewell dinner attended by NATO ambassadors and high U.S. officials, said the time has come to grasp the nuclear problem, particularly in relation to the need by Europeans for a voice and influence in NATO nuclear decision-making.

"I believe it is the desire of almost all NATO nations that the authority over the nuclear capability which supports NATO defence plans should be vested in the alliance itself," Norstad said. "To meet this desire, the nuclear weapons deployed for the purpose of giving reality and substance to the NATO principles should be wholly committed to the alliance."

The proposal involves the early departure of American-born Hal Banks from the leadership of the union, with three "monitors" taking over control on a six-month trial to reform the SIU.

Labor Looks at SIU But Banks Must Go

OTTAWA (CP)—Some top Canadian labor leaders are being sounded out informally on a deal to get the Seafarers' International Union back into the Canadian Labor Congress, reliable sources said Monday.

Norris SIU Hearing

Missing Luggage in Unionist's Suite

OTTAWA (CP) — Two briefcases containing confidential information relating to the Norris marine inquiry disappeared Sunday night and later turned up in the hotel suite of Seafarers' International Union chief Hal C. Banks, it was learned Monday.

Mr. Banks told reporters Monday it was all a "mixup." He said luggage belonging to commission counsel Marc Lalonde and an unidentified woman was taken to his hotel suite by error when he arrived here by train from Montreal.

A reliable source said the two briefcases belonging to Mr. Lalonde were lost for about three hours altogether. They were traced to Mr. Banks' suite at the Lord Elgin Hotel by CNR police, who were asked by Mr. Lalonde to investigate.

Mr. Banks, a key witness before the federal inquiry headed by Mr. Justice T. G. Norris of Vancouver into shipping and labor strife on the Great Lakes, said he travelled to Ottawa in the same parlor car with Mr. Lalonde.

Mr. Banks said luggage was taken off the parlor car all at once and he blamed CNR stewards for misdirecting some pieces.

Before Mr. Norris, Mr. Banks admitted Monday he tried to make a deal with the Cuban government late in 1961 to get eight strike-bound Canadian freighters sailing again.

The 54-year-old union chief said the SIU is willing to sail the still-stalled ships "for anybody" — as long as they are manned by Canadian crews at Canadian wages.

The eight ships were tied up in Halifax by CN Steamships after an unsuccessful SIU strike in 1957. Later, the ships were sold to Cuba for $2,000,000 but were never put into operation.

Mr. Banks also admitted Canada Steamship Lines planned to shift its entire Canadian-flag fleet to Bermuda registry in 1961 to save $98,000,000 annually in taxes and his union agreed to support the transfer.

At first he called runaway ships those that take to a foreign flag to escape taxation, maintenance costs, provisioning costs, wages and scales.

Confronted with a statement he made in 1961 about CSL's plan to escape $98,000,000 in taxes, Mr. Banks shifted his definition to bring Canadian wages and manning scales to the top.

Mr. Justice Norris asked if the CSL ships were to be "guinea pigs."

"That is right," said Mr. Banks, explaining the transfer was contemplated as a means of bringing "the vastness of the tax problem" to the attention of Ottawa.

Togo Ruled By Soldiers

LOME, Togo (AP)—A group describing themselves as disgruntled former colonial soldiers held power in Togo Monday night and seemed intent on handing it over to someone else as soon as possible.

Churches Say Racism Sin

CHICAGO (UPI)—Protestant, Catholic and Jewish leaders joined Monday in denouncing racism as a sin, and confessed that churches and synagogues are involved in the guilt along with the rest of American society.

A summons to national repentance was issued by spokesmen for all three major faiths, meeting together for the first time in U.S. history at a "national conference on religion and race."

Emmanuel Bodjoile, a former sergeant in the French colonial army, took credit for Sunday's coup and presided over a nine-man "insurrectional committee" of army men who sought to establish what they called a legal civil government of provisional nature.

In the meantime, Radio Lome announced, Togo would respect its foreign treaties. These treaties include a technical and economic co-operation pact with the United States.

DEATH NOT PLANNED?

The revolutionary committee said its movement had been spontaneous, "inspired by no political or religious ideology." It said no Togolese leader inspired either the organization of the committee's plan nor participated in its execution.

Bodjoile added that President Sylvanus Olympio's death had not been planned.

France Shuns Offer

PARIS (Reuters)—President de Gaulle Monday rejected the United States offer of Polaris nuclear missiles for France and expressed strong doubts about Britain's attempt to enter the European Common Market.

De Gaulle told a press conference:

"I do not think anyone thinks we can now subscribe to the Bahamas agreement," which included the Polaris offer, and added it was not even "of current interest" to France.

President Kennedy made the offer to both France and Britain when he met Prime Minister Macmillan in the Bahamas last month.

De Gaulle did not slam the door on Britain joining the Common Market but he expounded at length his view that at the present time the British economic system with its world wide trade links and cheap food policy was incompatible with the system prevailing inside the Common Market.

One French official experienced in Franco-British relations made this comment on de Gaulle's statements about British entry: "The coffin is ready, but the body (meaning Britain) is not."

De Gaulle also reiterated his determination to build an independent French nuclear arm in apite of the Anglo-American agreement to create a multilateral NATO nuclear force.

"I repeat that France intends to have her own national defence," he said.

U.S. Nuclear Plan Accepted by Bonn

BONN (Reuters)—West Germany will co-operate with President Kennedy's plan to set up a multilateral nuclear force for NATO. Chancellor Adenauer told U.S. State Undersecretary George Ball Monday.

Chief government spokesman Karl-Guenther von Hase told a press conference his country's NATO ambassador, Wilhelm Grewe, has received instructions to participate at NATO headquarters in Paris in preparations for creating the multilateral nuclear force.

LAST FOR WEEKS

Von Hase said discussions for implementing the basic agreement will last "for weeks or months."

Ball briefed Adenauer for two hours on the Nassau agreement in which Kennedy offered Polaris submarine-launched missiles to Britain and France last month, in exchange for the U.S.-abandoned air-to-ground Skybolt contracted for by Britain.

NO MORE FEARS

Von Hase told reporters later that West Germany's agreement on the multilateral nuclear project showed Bonn no longer fears the possibility of a "nuclear big three" directorate within NATO composed of the U.S., Britain and France.

Tshombe to Surrender?

ELISABETHVILLE (AP)—A Belgian delegation was reported in Katanga Monday trying to persuade Katanga province President Moise Tshombe to surrender that stronghold to the United Nations without a fight.

Diplomatic sources in Elisabethville said Tshombe was consulting with his ministers on what action his secessionist government should take. It was felt Tshombe must decide soon whether to give in to the UN or fight, either in Katanga or in the bush.

Andre van Roey, director of the Katanga National Bank, and Jacques Houard, Belgian consul-general in Salisbury, Southern Rhodesia, headed the Belgian delegation.

Van Roey, a close friend of Tshombe, and Houard planned to advise Tshombe to call off his dogs to advise Katanga province's national bank in Elisabethville might total close to try, and convince him that he 2,000,000,000 Congolese francs should co-operate with the UN ($40,000,000).

The Great Reverse

IN NOW UNRESERVEDLY advocating a policy of nuclear weapons for Canada's military forces, Mr. Lester Pearson has succeeded in making his greatest impact upon the Canadian public since he assumed the leadership of the Liberal Party.

Unfortunately for Mr. Pearson, the result of the impact is likely to leave both him and his party in a considerably weakened position, both morally and politically.

It is not so much whether Mr. Pearson's newly-evolved defence program is right or wrong for the country that will impress the Canadian voter but rather the fact that it so completely and utterly reverses the highly idealistic policy he has preached for more than five years.

It cannot be forgotten that it was Mr. Pearson who in 1959 questioned the value of Canada being part of NORAD and resolved that the country should follow a nuclear-free defence policy.

Among other demands made at that time by the Liberal leader and his colleagues were that the government should abandon both SAGE and the Bomarc, replace the RCAF's nuclear-carrying CF-104 (then on order) with aircraft armed with conventional weapons suitable only for limited "brushfire warfare," retire the navy's destroyer escorts in favor of troop carriers and supply ships for UN missions and equip the army with nothing but conventional arms.

In 1961 and 1962 Mr. Pearson extended his non-nuclear defence plans for this country. At the great 1961 Liberal rally from which the "new" Liberal Party emerged, he subscribed to a defence policy which declared that a Liberal government would not acquire, manufacture or use nuclear weapons either under separate Canadian control or under joint U.S.-Canadian control except under NATO command—providing they were under NATO control and not under that of any single member state.

"Membership in the nuclear club," the policy read, "should not be extended beyond the four countries which now possess such weapons."

Such was Mr. Pearson's policy and views until Saturday, January 12, 1963, when suddenly he threw both his ideals and his former promises overboard. It is doubtful whether by doing this Mr. Pearson will strengthen either his own party or his own image at home or abroad.

As long as he held firmly to his earlier view he at least could claim a moral base from which to attack the government's policy of equipping the armed forces with weapons capable of carrying nuclear warheads and training them in their use without actually accepting them.

He could, from his non-nuclear stand, feel free to criticize the government for its announced intention of accepting nuclear weapons if disarmament efforts failed and "if the circumstances arose." And attack the government he did, to gain no little support across the country for his actions.

Today Mr. Pearson is left with no alternative but to scourge the government for not arming its military forces with nuclear weapons. But by so doing, he will also be attacking the very policy his party has followed and fought for over five long years and through three general elections.

All this does not alter the fact that from a realistic point of view Mr. Pearson's newly-announced policy may well be the right one for this country. But few Canadian voters have the military knowledge to enable them to appreciate this point of view. They are more apt to judge the Liberal leader on the political reasons for his statement.

Satisfying Result

PLEASURE will be felt all around that the $350,000 target has been reached in the public appeal for building funds for St. Joseph's Hospital so that the way is clear for completion of a renovation and expansion program that will enable the hospital further and better to serve the growing population of southern Vancouver Island.

What was originally intended to be a six-week period of calling attention to the need of public support turned into one of eleven months' duration, including a suspension while the United Appeal campaign was in progress so as to give the latter a clear field. But this, St. Joseph's first call in its long history upon the people it serves so well, was a rarity in another respect also. It was a no-pressure campaign, and if reaching the goal took longer than at first estimated, this was undoubtedly the main reason, adversely reflecting neither on those who organized and worked hard in the appeal nor on the generosity of the community.

By far the greatest share of the construction costs will be borne by government at the three levels, and the Sisters of St. Ann who operate the hospital will contribute more than the public has given directly, by way of a $400,000 mortgage. But without the support provided by the people of this area, the $2,700,000 program of improvement and extension would have been impossible. Thus by helping St. Joseph's the community has manifoldly helped itself.

Travel Trends

THE TRENDS of travel are interesting. One mode of transport gives way to another, but not always to its demise. As we have seen on this coast ships may bow before aircraft but they may stage a comeback and eat back into airline business.

Except on the shorter routes where getting there quickly is the criterion a ship may still hold its own. There is no prospect it will become a museum piece. Travelling brochures everywhere are pressing the advantages of sea travel—as a holiday in itself.

Thus in our own area we have the Princess Patricia being refashioned as a cruise ship, where voyaging itself will be attraction. The CPR's prestige liner the Empress of Britain is following suit on wider ocean areas, having been let by charter for five years as a cruising vessel.

Across the Atlantic a promoter bid £1,000,000 for the Cunard's Queen Mary, which he intended to turn into a floating vacation at cheap rates. He was unsuccessful, but a new large-size Cunarder is envisaged for long-range winter cruises.

People will continue to fly, and in ever-increasing numbers, simply to get there. But no one undertakes high-flying purely as a voyage per se. The market for holidays spent entirely at sea and touching romantic faraway ports may also be on the increase, especially if the fares come down to entice the traveller of average purse.

"You could at least work up a forced grin..."

By TOM TAYLOR

LOOKING at a picture of old folks enjoying a belated Christmas dinner at the Citadel, two weeks after the community had dined collectively even if separately on the same kind of fare. I thought to myself that the Salvation Army has got something.

It always has had, of course, in a different context, else it wouldn't be the staunch band of warriors it is. Its activities run a wide gamut and I can recall two of them which stand out in memory. One the SA battle area canteens which made countless troops bless them, and the other, when I was a small boy, of a drum set in the middle of a street corner mission circle, onto which the public was invited to cast its spare coins.

That was in the long ago, and, happily, the SA doesn't now need to risk having its drumskins dented, and is able through more affluent and expansive circumstances to do good on a much larger scale.

As for instance this post-Christmas feast—

What I mean by its having "got something" in this connection is that a Christmas dinner delayed two weeks might seem doubly welcome and thus doubly tasteful. Not that the Yuletide feast itself is devoid of either vim, vigor or loudly acclaimed relish; it is the hangover that is damaging to epicurean taste.

This has no reference to individual hangovers of the kind you might think I mean—I am talking about solids not liquids—but rather to the extension in the few days immediately following THE dinner of its menu, partial, attenuated, or left-over as the case may be.

A clean break, a fresh Christmas dinner entirely a la SA, two or three weeks after December 25, would be more highly appreciated.

One by then would have his Christmas appetite back.

There might in fact be virtue in extending the Christmas festivity over a longer period, rather than compressing it into one or at best two days that stretch one's capabilities to the limit. It seems a pity that so much anticipation, so much effort—especially by harassed housewives—should culminate so suddenly and leave one somewhat like a damp squib that has petered out.

One is flattened by the sharp return to the norm of mundane things. Now if the occasion could be judiciously disposed over a month or two this might win some favor. There need not be any extra Christmas trees, of course.

The seasonal goodwill, at least, might last more than its customary fleeting moment. Mr. Bennett promises an example in that he will keep his going for all of the year but that, I am afraid, will be beyond the poor man. The annual eruption at James Bay is due to start this month and if he manages to maintain the Yuletide spirit he will be—not a miracle but a saint.

These afterthoughts about Christmas, for which if you find them distasteful you will have to blame the SA's post-Yuletide dinner, are nevertheless not unrelated to next Christmas, which, anyway, isn't so far away.

Do not people invariably complain, each year without fail, that Christmas creeps on them in stockings feet, and have not the local populace already bought up in multiple style greeting cards fancy wrapping paper—and, maybe, some next-Christmas presents—in looking early ahead?

Anyway, remember, we are a lot nearer to the 1963 Christmas than we are to the 1962 one, the latter having passed never to return whereas the former is getting closer. It is a mere 350 days away, in fact.

Climax Is Approaching

The Clash of the Communists

By EDWARD CRANKSHAW from London

AT last the great quarrel between Moscow and Peking has been brought out into the open. Sometimes it seemed that this would never happen. For years there have been serious disagreements between Mr. Khrushchev and Mao Tse-tung. Ever since Mr. Khrushchev's visit to the United States in 1959 those disagreements have been critical. In the summer of 1960, at the Bucharest conference, they were proclaimed to all the Communist parties belonging to the Soviet bloc. In the winter of that year, at the grand Moscow conference of 81 parties, they were proclaimed to all Communists everywhere.

But, officially, the great quarrel remained an intra-party affair. Even when Mr. Khrushchev launched his sharp attack on the Albanian Party at the 22nd Party Congress in Moscow in the autumn of 1961, China was not mentioned by name. And during all the newspaper polemics that followed, neither side said openly that it was attacking the other. The Chinese referred to the Yugoslav revisionists, meaning Mr. Khrushchev; the Russians to the Albanian dogmatists, meaning Mao Tse-tung.

The honor of breaking out of this artificial ritual circle was accorded to Nigro Tog-Batti at the Italian Party Congress in Rome last month. He was quickly taken up by Mr. Sikroky of Czechoslovakia, who perhaps to compensate for the extreme reluctance with which the Czechoslovak Party was following Khrushchev's de-Stalinization program, came out more sharply against the Chinese even than the Italians. Almost at once the Russians picked them up.

The most open snub to the Chinese on the Russian side was, of course, Mr. Khrushchev's demonstrative warm reception of Marshal Tito in Moscow, at a moment when the Chinese press was lashing itself into a fury about the betrayal of Communism. By their attacks on the Yugoslav revisionists the Chinese had made it impossible for the Russians to achieve a new rapprochement to the Yugoslavs without explicitly preferring Tito to Mao Tse-tung.

Mr. Khrushchev did not flinch. He welcomed Tito. And, although the real reason for their talks (known in advance to the Chinese but not to the outer world), the resumption of intra-party relations, was kept quiet, the Chinese must have seen that the game was up.

On Dec. 12, Mr. Khrushchev himself rammed home the point in his marchon speech to the Supreme Soviet he devoted an altogether disproportionate amount of time to a discussion of Yugoslavia, framed in the most sympathetic terms. Not content with this, for the first time he criticized the Chinese by name.

It was a very gentle criticism, in no way reflecting the intense bitterness of the quarrel.

rel: to get some idea of this bitterness one has to read his remarks about the Albanians and substitute Mao Tse-tung for Enver Hoxha. But even then the range of the quarrel, as revealed by the violence of Russian and Chinese speeches behind closed doors at the Bucharest and Moscow conferences in 1960, had still not been widely appreciated in the West.

Mr. Khrushchev confined his public criticism to the issue of war and peace. The Chinese, he said in effect, had criticized the Soviet party for yielding to the imperialists in the matter of Cuba and for failing to give active assistance to revolutionary movements everywhere. Mr. Khrushchev pointed out that the imperialist "paper tiger" had "nuclear fangs," and that by reaching an accommodation with the Americans he had saved the world from nuclear catastrophe; the Soviet Union would have won, he said (of course), but only at the unwarranted cost of a global holocaust. As for assisting revolutionary or national liberation movements, what was stopping the Chinese from liberating Hong Kong and Macao?

All this was only an overture. But Mr. Khrushchev has said enough already to make it clear that he has passed the point of no return: either the Chinese will have to toe the line, or else there will be an open breach. What does "toeing the line" in this context mean? It does not mean, it cannot mean the complete subordination of Peking to Moscow. There was never any question of that, even at the height of the Stalinist tyranny. China had made her own revolution, receiving more encouragement than help from Stalin, and applying herself to her own problems in her own way. Revolution is any China's problems were very different from revolutionary Russia's problems, and Chinese—well, even when directly inspired by Lenin, are very different from Russian ways.

The real trouble started when China began to urge her views on revolutionary activity outside the Communist bloc and on the impossibility of coming to terms of any kind with the "imperialists."

Since 1959 China's attitude to war, her contempt for Russian fear of nuclear war, her apparent under-estimation of the strength of America, and her insistence that it is the duty of the established Communist governments to aid actively and powerfully all revolutionary struggles everywhere, coupled with her angry repudiation of Soviet attempts to woo the neutrals (a policy never pretended by the Chinese themselves), have all run directly counter to Khrushchev's long-term, patient strategy, based on the principle that, given genuine co-existence for long enough, the non-Communist world will turn increasingly to socialist solutions, without violent revolution.

Four earthquakes caused catastrophic damage to the city and were among the worst shocks felt in the nation's history. Estimated damage to the once picturesque mountain city of 30,000 was $75,000,000. 1859—Queen Elizabeth I was crowned.

Not content with advocating their views in secret intra-party conference, the Chinese three years ago began actively to proselytise foreign Communist parties, trying to turn them against Khrushchev, and with their incessant attacks on Yugoslav "revisionism" (meaning Khrushchev's "revisionism"), sought directly to discredit current Soviet thinking.

Now the quarrel is coming into the open. It is clear that Khrushchev has never wanted to force a formal breach. Indeed, he has tried for three years to paper over the cracks. If there had to be a breach Khrushchev was determined to place responsibility for it firmly on Peking. Towards the end of 1962, however, he began to force the issue in quite a new manner. With the quarrel brought out into the open, it became clear that it could not be long before it reached a new climax.

It also became certain that the climax must take one of two forms. Either the Chinese will have to meet the Russians and other fraternal parties and agree to a new declaration of policy on Khrushchev's lines—and this time make it stick; or else they will be forced to denounce Khrushchev before all the world.

In the first case—if Peking toes the Moscow line—it is hard to see how the peace between them can be kept for long. A fundamental rift in the Communist world front will remain, mutually weakening to the partners in it, and liable at any time to erupt whenever one power initiates a policy that is not congenial to the other.

But this weakening will also be a consequence of Peking openly denouncing Khrushchev, for the world will then be faced with two Communist poles. The world Communist movement as we have thought of it for so long will then have ceased to exist as a unified force.

Such a split will be deeper than any likely to afflict the Western alliance, with repercussions beyond the Chinese and Russian empires. For it would bring an intensified competition between them for the favors of the neutral world and throw the neutral world itself into confusion by the necessity to identify their leanings to one pole or the other.

What the effect would be on the three power centres of Washington, Moscow and Peking is incalculable. Any polarization diminishing the hostility between Washington and Peking is inconceivable, and since the gulf between Peking and Moscow would be widening, the only other area of possible change would be a lessening of the animosities, and a strengthening of the prospects of peaceful co-existence, between Moscow and Washington.

Which, I wondered, was the happier couple? Was outward demeanour any criterion by which you could judge married bliss?

I was still eating when they paid their bills and left. From each table, the couple parted in opposite directions. The steward when I enquired, assured me that they were all casual strangers to one another, whom he had just put at table at random.

Right to Print

By MARQUIS CHILDS

THE news blackout in New York and Cleveland has produced jibes from parts of the world where authoritarian control of the left or the right is exercised over the press. You say you have freedom of the press, these jibes go, but what about this claim when in two of your leading cities there is no right to print?

With no end in sight in either city, the newspaper strikes are causing serious concern over the validity of what has long been considered a constitutional guarantee. If it can be abrogated for an indefinite time by one or more unions then it must be considered a highly qualified guarantee if it is in fact a guarantee at all.

The president, the secretary of labor, the governor of New York and the mayor of New York City have all undertaken to help bring an end to the conflict in New York between the printers and the publishers. Their efforts have been in vain, with Bertram A. Powers, president of the New York Typographical Union, refusing to participate in a study of the dispute by a board of public accountability named by Secretary of Labor Willard Wirtz, Governor Nelson Rockefeller and Mayor Robert Wagner.

As the news blackout goes into the second month with increasing hardship and inconvenience extending far beyond the employees immediately affected, thought is being given to how, if and when the strikes are settled, a way can be found to insure that this cannot happen in the future. In short, how can the guarantee of the right to utter and the right to print be made real in an era when powerful trade unions control the vital processes in the complex business of publishing a metropolitan newspaper?

An example is under study here in which both labor and publishers got together in agreement that freedom of the press was a right at least equal to that of freedom of labor. And, what is more, they did something about it.

In 1947 a printers' strike shut down the newspapers in Copenhagen, Denmark, for four months. Vincent Naeser, an owner of the Berlingske Tidende, one of Europe's most influential and distinguished newspapers, asked Professor Hakon Stangerup of the Copenhagen Graduate School of Economics to conduct an inquiry into the economics of newspaper publishing in relation to the concept of a free press.

The book written by Professor Stangerup, summarized in a pamphlet in English, describes the way in which neighboring Sweden the publishers and the printers reached accord on a system of arbitration that has prevented both strikes and lockouts since it was established in 1937. A series of strikes had shut down Swedish newspapers, concluding with one in 1919 that resulted in a two-months blackout.

The newspaper publishers' association, including conservative, liberal and all shades of opinion except the Socialist press, decided to lay out of the overall Employers' Association because they believed they should never agree to a general lockout such as might be called by the Employers' Association. Their reasoning was that publishers "have not only the right but also the duty to furnish the public with newspapers."

A careful distinction was also made between printing establishments and newspapers. Let by Stein Delhagen, for many years editor of Dagens Nyheter, also one of Europe's most respected newspapers, discussions were held with the printers. They finally agreed to separate for bargaining purposes the employees of printing establishments and of newspapers. In other words both sides came to recognize the interest of the public in the continuity of the press.

There followed extended negotiations concluded with a 10-year voluntary agreement under which all disputes were to be submitted to a three-man court of arbitration.

The terms of that agreement as signed by both sides include: "... the just demand of the public that the papers are published..." The basic agreement has subsequently been renewed on two occasions. The relationship between the printers and the newspapers has evolved in such a friendly fashion that only twice has it been necessary to resort to the Court of Arbitration to settle a dispute.

This example may have no significance in the United States where the fierce rivalry between competing unions for leadership in the wage struggle is a conspicuous feature. But union leaders themselves are said to be more and more concerned about the growing public antagonism toward the labor movement. George Meany, head of the AFL-CIO, reflects this feeling. Meany is said to have been willing to act as arbitrator in the New York strike. The publishers were sympathetic to arbitration. The printers pointed out that they have traditionally opposed arbitration.

A wistful hope has been cherished that the president might feel justified in invoking the Taft-Hartley Act. Under the 60-day cooling-off period, presumably the issues of the strike could be thrashed out while the papers were printed. But the language of the act says the president may intervene when a strike or a threatened strike "will imperil the national health or safety." And that language is apparently not broad enough to cover the political well-being of the United States, which is dependent on news and comment.

Answer to Skid Road

Centre for Indians

VANCOUVER (CP)—A social centre for Indians was in the planning stage Monday, away from Vancouver's skid road area where a score of Indian women die each year as a result of alcoholism, prostitution and slum living conditions.

LATER THIS MONTH
Members of the group spearheading the centre project are all of Indian blood.
City museum anthropologist James Garner, appointed interim centre committee chairman, said a formal committee would be appointed later this month and Community Chest backing will be sought. The Chest previously recommended the founding of such a centre for the city's more than 2,000 Indians living off reserves.
Mrs. R. W. Cantryn, a member of the interim committee, said the centre would be purposefully placed away from the skid road area "as an alternative meeting place."

It would be planned as a social and referral centre but would not attempt to provide hostel accommodation.

MEN SELL GIRLS
Guy Williams, president of the Native Brotherhood of B.C., said these associations include men who sell Indian girls. He said a good percentage of the estimated 156 Indian girls on skid road are being "used" by men for their own profit, and the rest are looked upon as candidates for prostitution.

CAN'T FIND JOBS
These girls, he said, are the victims of circumstances. They leave the reservations, come to the city and then can't find jobs, partly because they lack special training and partly because they are Indians.
The brotherhood president endorsed Mayor William Rathie's recently announced plan to attack the skid road problem by having licence and health departments investigate the problem of Indian women.

But he felt that a police purge of the men who sell Indian girls would go a long way toward solving the matter.

The girls on skid road, through little or no fault of their own, were giving other

Job Program For Indians In Manitoba

WINNIPEG (CP)—International Nickel Company has agreed to co-operate in a job placement program for Indians at the northern mining town of Thompson, Welfare Minister Christianson announced Monday.

He said the agreement was reached in Ottawa last week at a meeting between the company and officials of the provincial and federal governments.

Job-hungry Indians from Nelson House, 40 miles north of Thompson, earlier threatened to stage a mass protest march to the mining town if the Ottawa meeting ended in failure.

RCN Frigate Rescues Drifting U.S. Soldier

A young American soldier was plucked from a watery death in gale-swept seas Sunday by the Esquimalt-based frigate HMCS Beacon Hill on exercises off the California coast.

In an open boat for 52 hours without food or water, Gregory Morrison, 21, an armor specialist attached to Fort Irwin near Barstow, Calif., had just about given up hope of being rescued when he was spotted by the Beacon Hill.

EXCELLENT SERVICE

"There were lots of times when I didn't think I would make it," the slim, spectacled soldier said.

"I'm just grateful to the Canadian ship, the captain and crew. They gave me excellent service."

Morrison had drifted a 14-foot outboard boat to go fishing Friday.

STRUCK DEADHEAD

When he hooked a shark his boat struck a partly-submerged deadhead.

"The engine popped off like a mackerel and sank," he said.

Morrison survived an 18-hour gale with winds up to 50 knots, losing two improvised sea anchors and drifting 40 miles. Capt. Douglas Boyle, commander, fourth Canadian escort squadron, and aboard the Beacon Hill, told naval authorities here yesterday.

SHIPS RODE OUT GALE

"The same gale had caused the Beacon Hill and Jonquiere to remain at sea to ride it out rather than anchor as intended," Capt. Boyle said.

Morrison was picked up about 50 miles due south of Los Angeles, the captain said. This would put his position between San Clemente and Santa Catalina Islands.

Several ships and aircraft had passed over the small boat but the Beacon Hill was the only one to take notice of Morrison's plight.

COULDN'T SLEEP

"I couldn't go to sleep," Morrison said. "I had to stay awake to keep the boat pointing into the wind. That was the only way to keep from getting swamped."

The soldier's lips were puffed, eyes bleary and face marked from exposure, but he was in otherwise good condition.

The navy put him to bed and gave him "some of the best soup I ever remember eating."

He was later transferred to a U.S. Coast Guard ship for the 40-mile trip back to the mainland.

Credit Arranged For Needy Band

WINNIPEG (CP)—Emergency food credit has been arranged for a band of Manitoba Indians to allow them to work, a Progressive Conservative member of parliament said Monday.

Joseph Slogden of Selkirk riding said the credit was arranged at store on the Brokenhead Indian reserve 50 miles north of Winnipeg.

The Slogden said the arrangement allows Indians who go out and cut wood to collect food from the store the same day.

Walter Olson, chief of a 16-family band on the reserve, complained last Friday that the group had two small wood-cutting contracts but "we can't go out in this weather to do hard work without any food."

Temperatures dipped to 25 below during the weekend.

The Winnipeg Free Press said the 100-member band had been living on bannock and lard for two weeks.

LETTERS to the Editor

To be considered for publication in whole or in part letters must be on subjects of general interest, not more than 300 words in length and if signed with a pen-name must be accompanied by the writer's name and address.

The nuclear story is replete with thrills, skills and bills! The latter running into billions of dollars. For while the people take to fission like a duck takes to water, they don't take to bombs.

The power of the atom staggers the imagination but so does the responsibility against exploding ourselves into bits and pieces. Going up in smoke doesn't leave much residue.

Today men threaten as if the world belonged to them. Instead of to their children and their children's children.

Nuclear power can put up a grand excuse for total destruction but it cannot destroy the common humanly of millions who are not war crazy.

Is it not time that those who hold the fate of the world in their hands swallowed their pride?

Truth wrapped in atomic fusion can hide no longer. Man stares at the impassioned pages of history—his own. And let's hope that he doesn't browbeat the birth of a new age out of existence!

Example of Chivalry

—May I express my sincere thanks to those kind gentlemen who so promptly rendered assistance to my dear mother when she fell outside the Dominion Hotel around 4 p.m. last Wednesday? One of the gentlemen thoughtfully made a pillow of his Inosua sweater, another shielded her from the cold wind with his jacket.

Damaging to Party

I must support Mr. Strachan when he condemns Cedric Cox for making the trip to Cuba at the expense of the Cuban government not because he made the trip and told the truth about conditions in Cuba but on account of the damage such a trip will do to his party. There are so many foolish people and I note that I must include Mr. Bennett in this category who will immediately classify the NDP as Communist and a danger. In fact the NDP is very anti-Communist and has rejected the Communist vote and assistance in provincial and federal elections.

I would dearly like to see an impartial body visit Spain, South Viet Nam, Peru, Paraguay, Nicaragua and other Latin-American countries and make a true comparison between the conditions which prevail in Cuba and these dictator-ridden countries. Such an impartial investigation would find that these countries are far from free and that conditions for the majority of their peoples are far worse than those prevailing in Cuba. However, these countries are in the "free world."

Before Tax Cut

New Means Sought To Boost Revenue

TORONTO (UPI)—Finance Minister Nowlan indicated Monday the federal government must find alternate means of raising revenue before it can meet current demands for a tax cut.

He told a Canadian Club luncheon that proposals for a personal and corporate income tax reduction were "not very constructive in present circumstances" unless they were accompanied by suggestions to make up the loss of revenue involved.

While Nowlan made no specific reference to them, the statement appeared to be an answer to demands for a tax cut last week by both the Canadian Manufacturers Association and the Canadian Chamber of Commerce.

Nowlan said a "fundamental" objective of the Diefenbaker administration.

"However, this objective cannot be attained quickly," he said. "The unfortunate truth is, even with controllable government expenditures are slashed, there is still a tremendous area over which the minister of finance—or the government—has very little control whatsoever."

Nowlan said the government hoped to achieve "substantial" savings from the recommendations of the Glasco royal commissioner on government organization. He said immediate attention was being given to these proposals.

New Location Chosen For Big Dam

SEATTLE (AP)—A site 17 miles upstream from Libby, Mont., has been picked for the proposed $350,000,000 Libby dam on the Kootenai River.

U.S. army engineers reported Monday.

The site, which is subject to approval by the chief of army engineers in Washington, is about two miles upstream from a location originally considered.

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A 650-mile line to transmit electric power from Oregon to Los Angeles is proposed by four Southern California companies.

The project, announced Sunday by Southern California Edison Company and three other firms, would cost an estimated $100,000,000.

Seven Nuns Unreported

LEOPOLDVILLE (Reuters)—Seven Belgian nuns are missing from a mission station in the strife-torn South Kasai region of the Congo republic, diplomatic sources said Monday.

The sources said no further details were available, but they were awaiting the return of a European who had gone to investigate the general situation in South Kasai.

Badminton 'Double' For Three

The city junior badminton championships finished Sunday at Victoria Racquet Club and the finals produced enough promising talent to make the future look bright.

Three players—Joan Cosar, Wendy Aaronson and Alec Orr—came out double winners.

Miss Cosar won the under-17 singles by beating Gail Halburd, 11-2, 11-3, then joined her for a 15-3, 15-8 victory over Jackie Butling and Carole Gibson in under-17 doubles.

TWO LOSE TWICE
Miss Aaronson beat Ruth Jorgenson to win the under-15 singles, and shared the doubles with Bette Cosar, beating Connie Barlowen and Miss Jorgenson, 15-11, 15-11. Orr-Ewing beat Rod Harvey, 15-4, 15-2, in the under-17 singles, and teamed with Bill Chudyk to take the doubles in that division, 15-3, 15-5, from Rod and Brian Harvey.

Pam Davies doubled Janice Melville, 11-1, 11-6, in the under-13 singles and Robin Burrell outlasted Keith Burrell, 12-15, 15-7, 15-3, in the singles. Brock Stevenson beat Morris Duncan, 15-2, 15-2, in the under-15 singles.

AT THE 19th

With Harry Young

Hundreds of United States caddies who for years have been unable to participate in amateur golf events now find themselves free to do so.

A change by the United States Golf Association in its definition of an amateur golfer has restored the old bag-toters to the simon-pure ranks. Also back into the amateur fold are caddy-masters; assistant caddy masters and persons employed in making, repairing or cleaning clubs or selling merchandise in a golf shop at a golf club.

Previously any person over 21 engaged in any of these activities had to forfeit his amateur standing. The new rule came into effect Jan. 1.

The USGA based its action on the belief that persons engaged as caddies or in non-teaching roles in the pro shops have no more advantage over the amateur golfer than do persons employed as club managers or greenskeepers who are deemed to be amateurs.

So far it is not known if the Royal Canadian Golf Association will fall in line with the USGA. At present its amateur status rules follow those of the USGA, but the new ruling is likely to be a matter for discussion at the annual meeting of the RCGA Feb. 1 in Montreal.

One of the arguments in favor of the change is that it might provide lucrative summer employment for university students without ruining their amateur standing. At present they can do so only up to their 21st birthday. Others take the opposite stand—that university students who have reached 21 should be sufficiently advanced in their studies to be able to command more stimulating and lucrative work than putting around caddy sheds.

The U.S. rule is also likely to meet with opposition, not because the principle is wrong, but because it might lead to abuse in which leading amateur golfers might use it as a way of receiving subsidization from their clubs or other sponsors.

It is worth noting that while the USGA has generally been the leader in any liberalization of golf rules—steel shafts, stylic abolition etc.—it has not always been right. And some of its proposals have either been rejected by the other national bodies, or have had to be rescinded later.

The latest proposal is one that might come into the latter category.

Pro Football Stars Put on Good Shows

Professional football's all-star games wound up a lengthy season Sunday but left fans looking forward to next season. Both were entertainingly good.

At Los Angeles before 61,374 fans, line defensive play and the running of fullback Jib Brown carried the Eastern Conference to a 30-20 win over the Western Conference in the National Football League game. At San Diego in the American Football League game, the West got by the East, 21-14, before 27,641 fans.

RECORD TOTAL

Brown, who set a record of 141 yards, scored twice for the NFL Easterners and set up a third touchdown with a 33-yard run. His first score came on a brilliant 50-yard jaunt as he broke through the middle of the line and outtraced all defenders. He powered over from one yard for his other points.

But it was the defence, led by 288-pound "Big Daddy" Lipscomb. Bob Gain and Jim Katesavage, which led to the win. Losers were rocked loose from the ball three times, and East cashed in for two touchdowns and a field goal.

FUMBLE IT AWAY

Trailing 13-20 in the fourth quarter, the East got even when Y. A. Tittle threw a 19-yard scoring pass to Preston Carpenter. Then with less than four minutes left Gain shook the ball loose from Johnny Unitas and Lipscomb recovered to set up a tie-breaking field goal by Lou Michaels.

On the kickoff return, Gaken Flax forced Abe Woodson to fumble and defensive-back Don Bishop picked up the ball and raced 20 yards for the clinching touchdown.

City, Duncan Rinks Head Bonspiel List

DUNCAN — Rinks skipped by Ralph Schmidt of Victoria and Glen Harper of Duncan shared top honors at the Duncan men's bonspiel, which ended Sunday night at the Duncan Curling Club.

Schmidt, who had Gordie Robertson as vice-skip, Corky Davis at second and Dick Fisher leading, won five straight games to take the primary event and the Wright Trophy. He defeated Rod Carmichael of Port Alberni in the final. However, the Victoria rink lost its first game in the Grand Challenge event, open to the semi-finalists of the other four events, and wound up with a 5-1 record.

GOOD WARM-UP

Harper, who will represent his club in the zone playoffs, set for Victoria Saturday, dropped quickly into the "C" event before he and his club rink got straightened away. They won that event, and the Island processing trophy, and then went through in the Grand Challenge with four more wins.

Harper, supported by Alan Quarry, Art McDiarmid and Norm Johnson, defeated Dave McDiarmid, who called the shots for Mike Willis, Bob McKinley and Hugh Williams, defeated Hodge in the final of "B" event to win the Wadsworth trophy. Lunn, who played third shots for Doug Neff in this event, won the "D" event and the Commercial trophy by defeating Dunn in the final. Gene Koster and Chick Johnson completed the Nanaimo rink.

Winners follow:

"A" event—1. Ralph Schmidt, Victoria; 2. Rod Carmichael, Port Alberni; 3. Keith Davis, Duncan; 4. Ian Graham, Victoria.

United Generous In Cup-Tie Loss

VANCOUVER — Vancouver Canadians beat Victoria United, 2-1, in the Anderson Cup soccer semi-final here Sunday, but never scored a goal. United scored both for them.

Canadians first goal came just after the start of the second half when United goalie Barry Sadler punched the ball away from the goalmouth after a Vancouver corner. The ball hit fullback Len Anderson, and bounced back into the net.

Centre-forward Geoff Hill tied it up 18 minutes later on a play with Dave Stothard and George Paul, but Canadians got it back on the very next play. Normie McLeod, who has scored five of the six goals Canadians have against United this year, took a long shot that went wide, only to bounce off the knee of fullback Ron Jenkin into the net for the winner.

It was another chapter in a rather frustrating series against Canadians this season. Their first match ended 1-0 for Canadians on a goal by McLeod. Their second wound up 3-2, and McLeod got all three goals. Then came yesterday's game, the one that put Canadians into the Anderson Cup final against defending-champion Firefighters next Sunday, and gave United a two-week break from league or cup play.

Sunday's scores: New York 3-1 at Detroit; Toronto 2-1 at Boston; Montreal 2-1 at Chicago 2.
Next game: Wednesday—Boston at Chicago.

Gordie Howe is coming out shooting these days, and he has the rest of the National Hockey League ducking for cover.

The 34-year-old veteran, on one of the hottest scoring streaks of his 17 seasons in the NHL, scored twice Sunday to lead his Detroit Red Wings to a 4-2 victory over New York Rangers. And coach Sid Abel says the fact that Howe is shooting instead of passing is the big reason why the Wings are making their move to get back in the league race.

PICK UP POINT

They gained a bit of ground Sunday as first-place Chicago played to a 2-2 tie with Montreal Canadiens and Toronto Maple Leafs tied Boston Bruins, 2-2.

"Gordie had had only one flaw," Abel insists. "He'd rather pass to someone else than shoot. But he's shooting more now, and shooting as well as he has done since he came into the league."

Howe took 11 shots Sunday as he reached the 20-goal mark for the 14th consecutive season. He now has 20 goals and 20 assists in 39 games.

SEVEN GOALS IN THE LAST FOUR

seven goals in the last four games, and a career total of 522 goals—only 22 short of Maurice Richard's all-time record.

But everything isn't coming up roses for the Wings, despite the fact that they are only six points behind Chicago with three games in hand. They'll have to go most of the way without goalie Terry Sawchuk. Sawchuk was injured Saturday night in Toronto. He severed two tendons in his left hand and will be out for at least eight weeks. Dennis Rigin replaced him Sunday.

Black Hawks got both their goals from Ab McDonald to the Canadiens, who had gone ahead 2-0 on goals by Jean Beliveau and Gilles Tremblay.

It was the same story in Boston, where Leafs grabbed a 2-0 lead on goals by Eddie Shack and Ed Litzenberger, then couldn't hold off the scrappy Bruins.

Charlie Burns made it 2-1 before the second period ended, and Murray Oliver tied it with his 14th goal of the season.

AMBASSADOR 990

"For outstanding design achievement and engineering leadership"

Rambler wins the industry's "Car of the Year" award

On January 8, the Motor Trend "Car of the Year" award (the most sought-after award in the automotive industry) was presented to Rambler. We're proud of it. And we're proud of the cars that earned it.

The award this year was given to the complete Rambler line—the popular Classic 6, the powerful Ambassador V8 and the compact American 6—for "outstanding design achievement and engineering leadership." In our opinion, this statement is just another way of saying "maximum usefulness to the user." And "maximum usefulness to the user" has always been a Rambler concept.

We usually describe this concept in terms of the specific features that you get when you buy a Rambler. By features, we mean our Deep-Dip rust-proofing process that gives you the world's most rust-proofed car. We mean such features as Uniside Construction—our revolutionary new way of building cars to give you true functional beauty.

By features, we mean Double-Safety brakes—available on no other car built in North America except Cadillac; a Ceramic-

Armoured muffler that's unconditionally guaranteed for as long as you own your Rambler; a factory installed battery and coolant—both guaranteed for two years.

By features, we mean all of the no-cost extras that make your Rambler the best car value in Canada. In fact, the extras you get in a Rambler today are those you can expect from other cars in the years to come. That's how we've earned our reputation for automotive leadership.

How do the people behind the award describe Rambler's "outstanding design and engineering leadership"?

"This latest design (new Uniside Construction) represents a real advancement and the biggest single reason we chose Rambler Car of the Year. Not only does this new construction method save approximately 150 pounds over the older design, but it results in a unit so strong it'll take punishment longer and naturally hold its resale value. All this adds up to greater customer appreciation, in which, incidentally, Rambler has never been lacking."

"Quality has always been one of American Motors' largest selling points and it continues to be on the new models."

"In summing up, all we can add is that it looks like the new Rambler will be an even better buy than it has been in previous years."

There's more. Much more. These automotive experts filled twenty-six pages of the February issue of Motor Trend magazine, with what we consider to be good reasons why you should take a close look at the 1963 Rambler. Your nearby Rambler Dealer will be glad to go over these reasons in detail. Drop in and see him—and the "Car of the Year"—soon.

Universities Need Funds

VANCOUVER (CP)—Dr. MacKenzie last year, said in his first public address since his appointment as president of the University of British Columbia, said Monday that finding the staff and funds to expand its colleges and universities is the most important task facing British Columbia.

And he warned in a speech to a Vancouver Board of Trade luncheon that if this is not done the province may be doomed to failure in a highly complex and competitive world.

Guest Pianist Thrills Symphony Audience

By BERT BINNY

"It's a pity to come 3,000 miles and not play my piece!" Williams Stevens, guest pianist with the Victoria Symphony Orchestra this weekend, thus announced his presence.

The audience, Sunday afternoon wanted him back—his playing of Beethoven's second piano concerto was a musical and artistic thrill.

COOPERATING FRIEND
To sum up his pianistic virtues: Everything he does is just right and every note is given the best value. Moreover, the piano he plays seems to be a co-operating friend rather than a mere instrument under lofty hands and control of some grand master. But the results are fully as good.

"My piece," incidentally was Brahms' B flat minor Intermezzo.

AIR MISNAMED
The program opened with Bach's Suite No. 3 played by the orchestra. The second part of this is the lovely Air for G-string—according to one authority "a misnomer which infuriates all musicians."

This is odd. Musicians don't seem to suffer from misnomers. The Air, particularly when played as beautifully as Sunday afternoon, would sound just as pleasing if it were called Tiger Rag. The Air was the best part of the Suite; there were uncertainties at other points. But Brahms' Symphony No. 2, which concluded the program, was excellently done with a fine contribution from the French horns.

But the whole program, fifth in the regular series, was very satisfying.

The program in the next series of concerts—Feb. 2 and 3 and in Duncan Feb. 1, has been changed.

PIANIST UNAVAILABLE
Pianist Miss Sheila Bates will be unavailable. Instead, guest conductor Clifford Evans, formerly billed for Sidney Feb. 22 and Victoria Feb. 24 and 25, will conduct the orchestra in Edward Elgar's famous composition The Dream of Gerontius.

Mr. Evans was concertmaster and assistant conductor of the Victoria orchestra for several seasons.

Traffic Survey Plan Revived

A proposal for carrying out a complete metropolitan traffic study in Greater Victoria has been revived, the Colonist learned yesterday.

The four local councils will be asked by the Capital Region Planning Board to contribute toward the cost of the study which is to be financed partly by the provincial government.

FULL DATA

It will provide complete data on traffic flow in the area as well as the origin and destination of vehicles and include a projection of future highway needs. It could be completed in six months.

Results obtained in the course of the study will have an important bearing on planning in all four municipalities and will affect such projects as provincial government free-ways and Victoria's one-way street system.

THREE AGREED

The study, first proposed by the CRPB some time ago, was dropped when Saanich council refused to contribute its share of the estimated $70,000 cost. Victoria, Oak Bay and Esquimalt agreed to participate.

Reeve George Murdoch of Oak Bay, chairman of the regional planning body, confirmed last night it is seeking a "final cost figure" on the survey before making a new submission to local councils.

COST UP

He said the $70,000 estimate provided last year by a San Francisco firm of consulting engineers had risen sharply as the result of devaluation of the Canadian dollar.

When the survey was first proposed, the provincial government agreed to pay $28,000 toward the total cost.

Entire Area Invited Into Archer Probe

All Greater Victoria municipalities have been asked to join in ex-Vancouver police chief George Archer's police investigation.

Letters from the attorney-general's department were sent to Oak Bay, Saanich and Esquimalt suggesting Mr. Archer assess present and future roles of the outlying departments while doing the same for the city.

Oak Bay agreed immediately.

Inspections Set Tonight

Brig. E. D. Danby, the army's B.C. area commander, will make two informal inspections in Victoria tonight.

Brig. Danby will inspect the 40th Technical Squadron, RCME, at 8:15 p.m. in the Bay Street Armories, and at 9:15 will inspect 4 Company, APIS intelligence corps.

Engineer Assails Subdivision Work

Motorist Dies At Wheel

A 56-year-old motorist died at the wheel of his car on Esquimalt Road near Head Street yesterday afternoon.

Police said it was possible Donald McGregor Crawford, 4075 Tyndall, died of a heart attack. The car was heading toward Victoria. It ran up on the sidewalk but was undamaged.

City Accountants Meet Thursday

A dinner meeting of the Certified General Accountants Association, Victoria chapter, previously scheduled for Wednesday, will be held at 6:30 p.m. Thursday at the Pacific Club, 625 Fort. Guest speaker will be Highways Minister Gagliardi.

Entire Area Invited Into Archer Probe

Saanich Reeve Stanley Murphy said the request would be discussed at a council meeting and personally favored co-operating.

Esquimalt Reeve A. C. Wurtele could not be reached for comment.

Oak Bay Reeve George Murdoch said in his opinion the extension of the police survey would not lead to an amalgamated force.

NO OBJECTION
"We had a letter asking if we would agree to having the survey include our force and we don't have any objection to that," he said.

He said Oak Bay had a very efficient police service "which I don't think we could get with a larger merged force."

COWWOOD LEFT OUT

Sooke school board trustee Fred Boulter wanted to know why Mr. Bonner did not mention Cowwood where a number of break-ins and robberies have occurred recently.

Contractors have been getting by with slipshod underground work in new subdivisions, municipal engineer Neville Life told Saanich public works committee last night.

The engineer's request for hiring an inspector of subdivision services was tabled until after he will bring in reports on how many subdivisions were built during the past two years.

GOING AHEAD

Because inspectors did not arrive at construction sites on time, contractors have been going ahead with the installation of sub-standard drainage, sewers and water mains, he said.

Mr. Life said he does not have adequate staff to see that inspection is carried out on time, and that he has discovered slipshod work.

If something goes wrong at a site which has not been thoroughly inspected, the municipality is responsible for the damage, he said.

ABSOLUTELY NECESSARY
He considered his request for an inspector "absolutely necessary or I would not have brought it in."

Coun. Robert Ostler expressed concern that "developments may get the opinion Saanich is so lax they can do anything they want and get away with it."

Coun. Leslie Passmore asked for the request to be tabled because the engineer had brought in statistics only for the year 1961. He wanted to see 1962 subdivision figures as well.

OPPOSED REQUEST
Coun. Joseph Casey said he had opposed the same request last fall because the planning department, under the engineer's supervision, already has a man who does subdivision work.

Committee did, however, recommend council approve the engineer's request for hiring an assistant superintendent, a draftsman and an office girl for the engineering department.

Public works committee also discussed a proposed, council-initiated local improvement project for Burnside Road, on the grounds there appeared to be substantial opposition to the scheme.

NEED FOR ROADS

Instead, committee turned its attention to the need for major east-west routes across the Saanich Peninsula.

The engineer was asked to bring in detailed reports on

Parking Trade Slows

Signs of construction outside are deterring use of city's unfinished $130,000 View Street parking lot, a parking commission spokesman said yesterday. Lot averaged $100 a day during Christmas rush but take has tapered off during slow shopping month of January. All 100 parking spaces should be completed by month's end, the official said, after which lot should pay its way.

Phone Calls

Young Man Held In Extortion Case

A young man was charged last night with attempted extortion in connection with telephone calls threatening a prominent retired businessman here.

City detectives made an arrest yesterday afternoon near the telen pole in Beacon Hill Park where $2,500 was to be placed for the extortionist.

Detectives arrived on the scene an hour early.

PHONE CALLS
The delivery was scheduled for 5:30 p.m. The businessman was asked to bring the cash in person.

In a series of phone calls during the past 10 days, police said the businessman was threatened by what the caller claimed were tape recordings of his voice, and pictures.

Woman Hurt In Accident

A 77-year-old Victoria woman pedestrian is in fair condition in St. Joseph's Hospital following an accident Sunday afternoon in the Oxford-Oliphant area of Cook Street.

Miss Mina Koyter, 303 Vancouver, was crossing Cook Street when the accident occurred.

She sustained pelvic, hip and knee injuries. William Roger White, 1421 Edgeware, was driver of the car, police said.

Legion Meeting

Esquimalt dockyard branch of the Royal Canadian Legion will hold a meeting in the Legion Hall at 8 p.m. Wednesday.

The engineer was asked to bring in detailed reports on

Up-Island Help Indicated For Publicity

A co-operative spirit exists up-Island toward impending formation of a new agency to publicize Vancouver Island, says the commissioner of the Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau.

Commissioner William Hawkins last week spent several days traveling between Duncan and Campbell River meeting tourist industry operators and others before the founding convention in Nanaimo next Friday of the Vancouver Island Publicity Bureau.

The Vancouver Island bureau is to take over from the Victoria and Island bureau the job of attracting tourists to the island.

Allowance in Budgets

Some up-Island municipal governments have made allowance in their 1963 provisional budgets for grants to the new bureau, Mr. Hawkins said.

Main business of the founding meeting Friday will be election of a 12-man board of directors for the new bureau, and election by directors of their executive.

Quadra and Market Labor All Set For New Hall

By DON MATHESON

Tenders have been called for construction of a new home for Victoria labor unions at a site on Quadra at Market.

The modern split-level building would provide union offices, meeting rooms, rental offices and an auditorium.

Long planned to replace the aged labor council offices at 615 Pandora, the new building will be financed partly by union members themselves.

BIDS IN FEB. 1

Director E. T. Staley of the Victoria Building Co-operative Union, which owns the Pandora building, said the tenders are returnable Feb. 1.

Tentative financing arrangements have been completed, he said, and "providing the money put in for shares, then we're all set."

He said the union must sell $20,000 in shares in the co-operative to go with funds already on hand.

SELL SHARES FIRST

Once the shares are sold, then financing arrangements for the rest of the cost of the building will become effective. Cost of the new building is believed to be in the area of $150,000, but will depend on tenders.

Present labor council building on Pandora will not be sold until the new building is completed.

"We've had several offers,"

Four-year-old Julie Bain, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas H. Bain, 625 Baxter Street, couldn't get out into the snow quick enough. It was even a treat to sweep the walk clear before it melted. Karl Spreitz took these photographs Sunday morning.

The weatherman said it would snow. With the first sprinkle, which dusted the ground Saturday night, children were out making the best of the first deal taste of winter this year. But it didn't last. Hopes for more snow among the small fry are high so that the sleighs and skates will get some real use before spring. Marilyn Rankin, gives friend, Diane Bain, a push down a slippery lawn.

Honeymoon in Reno

Following their marriage in St. Martin in the Falls Church recently, Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Romnuk, left for a honeymoon in Reno, Nevada. The couple will return to make their home in South Burnaby.

Ruth Mabel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Ford, Lavender Avenue, Victoria, exchanged vows with Mr. Alex Victor Romnuk in a double ring ceremony performed by Rev. Vickers. Mrs. John D. McMillan sang "O Perfect Love" at the evening service.

Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. A. Romnuk of Port Moody, B.C.

SHEATH SKIRT

The bride chose an elegant slender lined gown of white delustrated satin. Full flowing paniers swept over the slim sheath skirt, and fell to a train. The scoop neckline of the fitted bodice was edged with applique lace, and lace highlighted the front of the skirt. She carried a cascade bouquet of red rosebuds and fuchsia. A Juliette cap held her shoulder-length net veil.

Mrs. Dick Barber of South

Burnaby, matron of honor, and Miss Chris Newman and Miss Cathy Bowdman, bridesmaids, were in red brocade dresses, styled with belled skirts. Red pill box hats and white accessories completed their outfits. They carried white carnations.

Flower girl, Linda Meunier, was dressed in a red brocade frock trimmed with white fur. A fur headband was in her hair and she carried a colonial bouquet of white carnations.

Mr. R. G. Hart was best man and Mr. Dick Barber and Mr. G. F. Ford ushered guests.

White-eyes, anthemiums and red carnations decorated Holyrood House for the reception. Mr. Frank Townsend, the bride's uncle, proposed the toast and Mr. Bob Boal and his band played for dancing.

For the honeymoon, the bride changed to a royal blue knit suit with white maribou hat and black patent accessories. Her corsage was pink-rosebuds.

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Our daughter who is a junior in college is interested in Sid, a young graduate student. Last weekend he was a guest in our home.

Sid shared a bedroom with our 16-year-old son. This morning after our daughter and Sid left for school our son told us he had an opportunity to learn a few things.

Sid's suitcase had someone else's initials on it. His driver's licence indicated that he is 23, not 21. He owes someone $200 according to a note in his wallet. There was a chummy letter in his suitcase from a girl who lives in Buffalo. Also he carries a picture in his wallet of two girls — our daughter and another girl.

What do you make of this? Shall we tell our daughter what we know? — CONCERNED PARENTS.

Dear Parents: You have a right to be deeply concerned about that nosy little punk you're raising.

There may be a logical explanation for the surface inconsistencies but Sid is under no obligation to defend himself. Say nothing to your daughter. It's your son who needs talking to.

Dear Ann Landers: I just read the letter from "Invisible Wife" who complained because her husband never noticed anything about her. She reddid her hair, lost 40 pounds and even had her teeth fixed. Everyone raved about the "New Her" — but her ever-lovin' spouse never said one word.

I'd like to trade husbands with that woman. My jerk doesn't miss a detail. He criticizes everything. If there is a speck of dust under the bed or a wrinkle in a shirt, he will find it. If my nail polish is chipped or if I have a crooked hem or a run in my stocking he calls it to my attention. Naturally if I mispronounce a word he corrects me in front of everybody.

So Ann Landers, tell the lady with the Silent Man to home — unless you live in the Orient, that is.

Confidential to Honeybun: Yes, dreams do mean something but I am not qualified to interpret your dreams, and neither is your 13-year-old girl friend.

My Friends tell me I look 10 years younger with CELEBRITY HEARING GLASSES

"I never realized what a BIG difference good hearing made in my appearance until I corrected my hearing loss with the wonderful new Celebrity Hearing Glasses. No more wrinkles, frowns and nervousness from straining to hear."

Family and Social Work First With Pat Fulton

By EILEEN LEAROYD

The Hon. E. Davie Fulton, minister of public works, formerly minister of justice and now almost certain choice for B.C. Conservative party leadership, is a familiar public figure—but what about the small, chic woman who stands at his side?

She stood at his side last night and shook hands with the 500 guests who attended a reception in Hollywood House.

Mrs. Fulton, the former Pat Macrae of Winnipeg, is a warm outgoing woman who does a lot more than just shake hands gracefully.

She is foremost a family woman. But she has deep and wide interests in social welfare work, education, religion and the broad humanities.

ENTERTAINING

She is adept at entertaining, is quite honest about enjoying the social obligations that go with life in diplomatic circles in Ottawa, but she could never be called merely a social butterfly.

The Fultons met while they were both at UBC. He was shortly to go to Oxford as a Rhodes scholar and she was taking degrees in arts and social work.

They met again in 1945 when Fulton, a major with the Seaforth's in Italy, was called home in the "Khaki election" as member for Kamloops. With the war over, they were married in 1946.

At the time they were married, Pat had been a social worker for some years and was executive director of the Catholic Children's Aid Society, Vancouver.

In 1946 they "moved" to Ottawa. "We moved and we didn't," said hazel-eyed Pat.

MRS. DAVIE FULTON
(Bud Kinsman)

"We never really gave up our home in Kamloops. For 16 years we spent January until June in Ottawa, and the rest of the time at home in the Cariboo."

The Fultons have three daughters, Cynthia is the youngest and she is eight, then Trish who is 12 and Mary, 14.

"We moved the children each time too. They have all term at school in Kamloops, the winter and spring in Ottawa."

FRENCH SCHOOLS

The last few years, the Fultons have put the girls in Ottawa's French school system.

"We believe," said Mrs. Fulton, "that it is an absolute necessity for people to be bilingual. The most wonderful jobs are open to those fluent in more than one language. At first Mary used to say, 'The sisters do not hear me, and I do not hear them' but after one month there was no problem at all."

"This last year, with the thoughts of coming West again, we returned Mary to the English school system. She said she had trouble in writing English compositions in the beginning. But she had 96 per cent in French!"

LOVE HORSES

Mrs. Fulton said all her girls are "horse mad" and they plan to earn riding money in the West by teaching French.

The average person would feel they were kept frantically busy moving house every six months, raising three girls and playing the part of an active social hostess.

Not Pat Fulton. On the "side," she does volunteer work.

Another facet of Pat's life are the personal demands made on her.

"As a politician's wife, you seem to become part of their career too. Davie has so many requests to open teas, bazaars and lay on—and in this regard I am frequently his 'stand-in'."

"On Davie's last campaign, he could only be in Kamloops riding for five days. So I was there the entire time planning his appearances and working on his behalf."

BUFFETS

As a hostess, Mrs. Fulton says she usually entertains "buffet style with tables of four."

"I have circles that fit over card tables and find they are wonderful. I cook myself, but for a big affair, get people in to serve. Sometimes at informal dinners, I ask the men to serve the ladies. So often diplomatic people get so tired of formal functions that they love this."

The Fultons are here following a whirlwind tour of points all over B.C. Pat went to most places with her husband.

SHIRTS WASHED

"Well just as a brief idea," laughed Mrs. Fulton, "Sunday night in Comox between a meeting and a dinner party, I spent half an hour in a coin laundry getting a set of Davie's shirts washed. The rest are in Vancouver, and I hope they are laundered and ironed by now."

Pat has no politicians in her family, but one brother, Rod Macrae, a mining engineer works for the Conservative party in North Vancouver.

Two younger brothers are priests, one with the Oblates and the other with the Benedictines. Two sisters are married in the U.S. Her mother, Mrs. J. M. Macrae lives in West Vancouver.

Next of the Fulton program is a fast return to Ottawa for the national convention.

Council Refuses To Ban Shorts

MONTREAL (CP)—"Immigrants" to Outremont from surrounding municipalities got a break Wednesday night—they can keep on wearing shorts if they want.

Outremont's city council quickly stamped down a request from a woman taxpayer who was not identified, that a bylaw be passed to ban shorts within the municipality in north-central Montreal.

The woman said in a letter to the council that shorts diminished the city's dignity.

She added that recent expropriations in Montreal had forced many "families of the non-educated class" to move to Outremont and members of these "emigres" were largely responsible for wearing shorts.

Garden Notes

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

The easy way to grow onions is to buy a bagful of onion "sets" in April and plant them in rows with their noses sticking up through the soil surface.

The only disadvantage to this method is you don't have much choice as to variety. You can buy yellow Dutch sets, white sets and multipliers, but nothing in the way of those big, sweet Spanish or Bermuda onions nor any of the new and exciting hybrid varieties. If you want to have a go at growing these, you'll have to grow them from seed and, because of certain peculiarities in the life cycle of the onion plant, the sooner these seeds are sown, the better.

The onion passes through three definite stages in the development of its growth and the first is the germination of the seed. Considerable warmth is needed, around 70 degrees, for quick and vigorous germination, after which the young seedlings should be grown under much cooler conditions but with plenty of sunshine.

Next comes the bulbing stage, when the base of the plant begins to swell to form the onion proper. During this period, no more leaves are produced and the whole energy of the plant is thrown into the plumping up of the bulb.

Until recently, no one knew just what set of conditions was necessary to turn an onion's attention from producing foliage to making a bulb. A series of painstaking experiments has revealed the fact the number of hours of daylight is the factor responsible for triggering this action. In most kinds of onions, bulbing starts when the plants are exposed to about 16 hours of daylight. In the latitude of Victoria, the 16-hour day occurs in early June.

The last stage is that of ripening. This is indicated by the weakening and falling over of the foliage, combined with the gradual drying up and contracting of the scales at the neck of the bulb. Sometimes, for one reason or another, this contracting at the neck doesn't occur, such thick-necked onions remain green much longer and are not good keepers in storage.

The point I want to make with all this explanation is this: If you want big, firm onions, the trick is to make sure your plants have lots of big, healthy leaves by the time the 16-hour day arrives to induce bulbing.

Onions are gross feeders and need the richest, most heavily manured piece of ground in the garden, but none of this rich stuff in the soil does any good at all until it has been converted into complex nutrients within the tissues of the leaves. As I have pointed out before, the leaves are the food factories, powered by sunlight and it follows that, the more healthy foliage you have on your onions, the more factories will be working to plump up your bulbs.

To get plenty of foliage by bulbing time in early June, onions have to be given an early start. At our house, onion seeds are sown in the second half of January in squatty flower pots, using a soil-less mixture of peat moss and vermiculite. The seeds are shaken up first with a pinch of Arasan or Spergon to keep them from rotting and the pots are set on top of our kitchen radio, which is always pleasantly warm to the touch from the tubes, providing a little extra warmth from below to hasten germination.

As soon as the seedlings come through, they are transplanted into flats filled with a rich but rather sandy soil. These are shaded from bright sunshine for 48 hours while the roots take hold and, the tiny plants are sprayed daily with a small pinch of permanganate in water. When all the seedlings are standing upright, the flats are transferred to the sunporch and thence, as growth progresses to the coldframe to be hardened off before planting out in April.

ART BUCHWALD Describes Big Let-Down

Invitation to an Anti-Climax

WASHINGTON — We went to our first official Washington function last week and it's something we'll remember for the rest of our lives.

It was the black tie, long evening dress opening of the Mona Lisa at the National Gallery, and our wife couldn't have been more excited if she had been invited to go water-skiing with John Glenn.

When the invitation arrived she couldn't believe it.

She was waiting for us when she came home from the office and she threw her arms around us. "We've been invited to something," she cried. "And after only four months in Washington! It's hard to believe!"

"What have we been invited to?"

"The unveiling of the Mona Lisa and the invitation says the President is going to be there and Andre Malraux and probably all of the Cabinet and the Supreme Court and the diplomatic corps and the members of Congress and everything. Isn't it exciting?"

We held our breath. "Our first Washington function. I wonder if we're up to it?"

"I'll have to buy a new dress," she said.

"Spend, spend," we chorused. "These things don't happen every day."

"And I'll need new shoes, and gloves, and I'll have to have my hair done and my nails done. I just don't know where to start."

"I have to call my mother, and my sister Pat, and my sister Joanne, and my sister Sue."

"Call, call. That's what long distance is for."

For the next two weeks we could talk of nothing else. Would the President speak to us? Would Malraux ask us to say a few words about the Mona Lisa? Would Vice-President Johnson insist on introducing us to his wife?

Our wife read every protocol manual she could get her hands on and, finally the big night came.

Our wife had spent $500 on a dress, $300 on the hairdresser, $100 for accessories. But she could hardly have spent less for such an important social engagement. Paul Young loaned us his Rolls Royce so we would arrive in style.

At the door of the National Gallery, U.S. Marines stood at attention under a long canvas archway. It was all we dreamed it would be. We squeezed our wife's hand as we entered the gallery.

After checking our coats we rode up in the elevator to the second floor with two Admirals, three Senators, and four Ambassadors, and their wives. Both of us were starry-eyed.

Then we stepped out of the elevator into the beautiful rotunda. We couldn't see anything except a mob of people standing facing a bunch of arc lights a way off in the distance. We stood patiently in the crowd staring at the lights.

Obviously they were going to let the crowd in all at once. A half-hour passed. We were now hemmed in from behind. Another half-hour passed. Nothing happened.

We heard some static over a loudspeaker and some applause. The arc lights were blinding us. Another half hour passed. Nobody moved. Bodies were pressed tightly together. More static, then more applause, and then suddenly everyone turned around.

"That's it," said someone. "What's it?" we asked. "It's all over."

"What happened?" we asked him.

"How the hell do I know?"

"What do we do now?"

"You go home."

"Where's the President?"

"He went home, too."

"But we haven't even seen the Mona Lisa."

"You can see it on television tomorrow morning at 8:30."

Our wife was heartbroken and was crying in the cloak-room.

An old experienced Washington hand tried to comfort her. "It's all right, dear," the lady said. "You'll get over it. The first function is always the worst. After a while you get used to it. What a pretty dress you're wearing!"

This last remark made our wife cry even more.

Model Letter of Application

Leonardo Got the Job!

By RUDOLF FLEISCH

Take any textbook on business writing and look up what it says about how to apply for a job.

You'll find that your application letter should pinpoint the exact services you can render to your prospective employer and give a complete resume of your qualifications.

There are model application letters in all the books, but you won't find a better one than the letter Leonardo da Vinci wrote in 1481 to Duke Ludovico Sforza of Milan. It's in a fascinating new book on Leonardo as a scientist and engineer by Ivor Hart, published by Viking.

Leonardo was 29 and looking for a job. He'd heard that the Duke of Milan wanted to put up a statue of his father and was afraid of getting into a war with Venice. So he wrote this:

"Having, most illustrious sir, seen and considered the experiments of all those who profess to be masters in the art of invention of the apparatus of war and, having found that their instruments do not differ materially from those in general use, I venture, without wishing injury to anyone, to make known to your Excellency certain secrets of my own, briefly enumerated as follows:

"I have a process for the construction of very light bridges, capable of easy transport, by means of which the enemy may be put to flight and pursued, and of others, more solid, which will resist both fire and sword and which are easily lowered and raised. I know also of a means to burn and destroy hostile bridges.

"In case of investment of a place, I know how to drain moats and construct scaling ladders and other such apparatus.

"If, by reason of its elevation or strength, it is not possible to bombard a hostile position, I have a means of destruction by mining provided the foundations of the fortress are not of rock.

"I know also how to make light cannon easy of transport, capable of ejecting inflammable matter, the smoke from which would cause terror, destruction and confusion among the enemy.

"By means of narrow and tortuous subterranean tunnels, dug without noise, I am able to create a passage to inaccessible places, even under rivers.

"I know how to construct secure and covered wagons for the transport of guns into the enemy's lines, and not to be impeded by ever so dense a mass, and behind which the infantry can follow without danger.

"I can make cannon, mortars, and engines of fire, etc., of form both useful and beautiful and different from those at present in use.

"Or, if the use of cannon happens to be impracticable, I can replace them by catapults and other admirable projecting weapons at present unknown; in short, where such is the case, I am able to devise endless means of attack.

"And, if the combat should be at sea, I have numerous most powerful engines both for attack and defence, and ships which are both gunproof and fireproof, and also powder and inflammables.

"In times of peace, I believe that I can compete with anyone in architecture and in the construction of both public and private monuments and in the building of canals.

"I am able to execute statues in marble, bronze and clay; in painting I can do as well as anyone else. In particular, I will undertake to execute the bronze horse in the eternal memory of your father and of the very illustrious house of Sforza and, if any of the above-mentioned things appear to you impossible or impracticable, I will offer to make an attempt at it in your park, or in any other place which your Excellency may please to choose, to which I commend myself in all humility."

He got the job.

Winning Contract

If in the bidding three no trump seems possible, but only just possible, the deciding factor is often the presence of good intermediate cards. North and South both took this factor into account in this deal, and the resulting contract was reasonable even though the combined honor count was low.

The first three bids came quickly, but North took a little time to decide whether to take a safe partial or to try for a doubtful game. His decision to raise to two no trump was based on two factors. In the first place, his five-card suit was strong and looked easily establishable. Secondly, he had useful filling cards: one ten-spot and three nines.

South was thinking along the same lines when he continued to three no trump. North and South have all the tens and nines between them and this makes it difficult for the defense to make any progress.

West had a lead problem, for his only long suit had been bid by South. Players who lead a club in such situations "because he might have had a short suit" are usually wrong and are almost sure to be wrong. In this case, South would probably have shown a minor suit over one diamond if he had had one, so his club suit was almost sure to be genuine. West selected his spade lead because, other things being equal, the jack is a poor honor to lead from.

The first trick brought forth the spade jack, queen and king. East might well have withheld his queen, on the bidding and opening lead, he could hardly have lost by doing so.

South led the diamond ten rather than the jack at the second trick because he did not want West to cover. When this hold the trick, he had no great trouble in making three no trump. West should have seen that a problem by covering the diamond ten with the queen. As South has no sure side entry to dummy, he might have decided to allow the queen to hold in order to make sure of four diamond tricks. He would then have had to work much harder to make nine tricks.

JFK Faces Trouble On Tax Cut

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy asked the U.S. Congress Monday for an unprecedented $13,500,000,000 tax slash to help assure cold war victory against a Communist empire in "disarray."

The president's proposed tax cut would be accompanied by a slash in all federal spending except for defence and space.

TROUBLE:

First reaction indicated the president will have trouble convincing the divided congressmen not of the desirability of the record-size tax cut but of its economic wisdom and feasibility.

Applause broke out many times as he delivered his third state-of-the-union message to a joint session of Senate and House of Representatives but handclapping for the tax-revamping package was only scattered. It came mostly from the Democrats—and not from all of them.

NOT NOW

Many congressmen have called for economies to offset any tax cuts, but Kennedy took the position that this cannot be done now. He predicted, however, that his plan would lead in time to "a balanced budget in a balanced full employment economy."

The tax reduction, biggest in history, would become effective in three annual stages, between 1963 and 1965. About $11,000,000,000 of the savings would go to individual taxpayers; the rest to corporations. The first-step reductions would take effect this year and would be at an annual rate of $6,000,000,000—but the total reduction for 1963 would

"A man who survived a 100-foot drop on West Coast Road Saturday night told the Colonist yesterday he couldn't describe exactly what happened."

"There wasn't much time to think about anything," said Robert McGeachy, 37,

Jordan River Hotel, a miner at Cowichan Copper Mine. His car went out of control about a mile east of Point-No-Point, plunged down the bank and was totally demolished.

Mr. McGeachy escaped without a scratch. "It took me 10 minutes to climb back to the road," he said.

Mr. McGeachy was on his way to pick up a friend in Victoria when the crash occurred. They were going on midnight shift at the mine.

After a three-minute wait he caught a lift back to Jordan River and called police.

Loud Red Hurrah

By JACK ALTMAN

EAST BERLIN (Reuters)—Soviet Premier Khrushchev arrived here Monday night to attend the East German Communist party congress opening today and declared that the Communist wall dividing Berlin represented Communist "success."

He added "I shall shout a loud hurrah when capitalism is buried."

Khrushchev bounded to the station platform and gripped East German Communist leader Walter Ulbricht by the hand. Khrushchev grinned broadly and embraced Ulbricht five times.

The party congress was widely expected to be a showdown with Communist China over ideology and foreign policy differences.

Khrushchev said that since his last visit three years ago the Berlin wall had been built and he added "This is our success."

Khrushchev then mentioned West German Chancellor Aden-

auer and contrasted the "aging system of capitalism with 'sprightly' socialism."

"I shall shout a loud hurrah when capitalism is buried."

"We will not have a war in order to bring the Socialist system of society to another country because we think that this is an internal matter for each country."

World In Brief

Purged

BERLIN (UPI)—East Germany Monday purged its economic-planning chief in an attempt to find a scapegoat for the nation's economic crisis. He is Karl Mevius, 53, a close friend of party chief Walter Ulbricht.

NEW DELHI—Indian Prime Minister Nehru said his nation "should be prepared for four or five years of war" with China.

STRASBOURG, France—Present radioactivity levels are far below the danger limit to human beings, experts told a Council of Europe Conference.

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—The U.S. and Russia opened a new round of high-level disarmament talks aimed chiefly at exploring possibilities of progress on a nuclear test ban.

WASHINGTON—Five companies or combinations of companies submitted bids to the U.S. space agency for advanced research on a 3,000-mile-an-hour commercial airliner.

Gagliardi Acts Pupils Return As Speed Cut

Parents of Mount Benson School pupils decided last night to send their children back to school after Highway Minister Gagliardi cut the speed limit to 40 miles an hour on the Island Highway at Jingle Pot Road in Wellington where a child was killed by a truck recently.

His decision was announced hours after a delegation of Wellington parents emerged from a two-hour meeting with Mr. Gagliardi, disappointed that they failed to get approval of a school crossing underpass.

ALREADY CUT

The speed limit on this stretch of road was recently reduced to 50 miles an hour from 60.

Mr. Gagliardi also announced a highways department employee will operate a push-button signal light at the Jingle Pot crossing for two weeks and double "no passing" lines will be painted on both sides of the intersection.

FAILURE

Frank Murphy, spokesman for the Wellington group and father of a youngster who must use the controversial crossing, said the delegation wanted an underpass and anything short of that was a failure.

In an unanimous decision the parents passed two resolutions. One said they would send their children to school as long as their safety is guaranteed by a light operated by the department of highways.

The second said the parents still want an underpass but are prepared to accept training for the pupils by the department and RCMP experts "if

Minimum Age Urged For Cyclists

Highways Minister Gagliardi said yesterday he will seek a minimum age limit for youngsters riding bicycles on B.C. highways.

He said he thought no child under 10 should be allowed to take a bicycle onto a highway and asked B.C. parents to make a reappraisal of their children's habits in relation to traffic safety.

The minister said from all information he has received on the Nanaimo accident it was in no way attributable to the type of school crossing.

Mr. Gagliardi, father of two boys, asked if he allowed them on the highway with bicycles at the age of six, replied: "If I did that I'd want my head examined."

Hope to Where?

Freedomites Say Goodbye

HOPE (CP)—Sons of Freedom Doukhobors threw a goodbye party Monday night for the people of this Fraser Valley village.

They arranged a program of choral singing and speeches of thanks, apparently to make it official that they are finally breaking camp after three months.

Where they are going is a mystery. As they took inventory Monday one of their spokesmen, Mrs. Florence (Big Fanny) Storgoff, said simply:

"MOVING WEST"

"Tell them we're moving west."

A member of the special RCMP detachment that has been assigned to them for months said:

"I get the feeling they know exactly where they are going, but I don't think the leaders have told the rest. This is one of the most closely-guarded secrets they've had since the trek began last summer."

AGASSIZ?

Since they burned their homes in the Kootenay Valley and started west Sept. 2, the 1,000 Freedomites have said their destination is Agassiz, B.C.

They have said they plan to camp around Mountain Prison, special Sons of Freedom jail where more than 80 of their sect are serving sentences for terrorism.

Born 1800 Died 1963

MOSCOW (UPI)—Mahmoud Vardan, whom Tass news agency said was possibly the world's oldest man, died Monday in the Syrian city of Latakia at 163 years of age.

Nor would Mrs. Storgoff say when they would move, but the state of preparations indicated it would be soon. In the past, the Sons have begun their moves from one point to the next generally on Sundays.

NO IDEA

Meanwhile, village chairman Paul Scherle, who led a group of the Doukhobors to Victoria to seek provincial aid recently, said he had no idea of their present destination.

He said Sunday that he was investigated by the RCMP recently after it was rumored that he was a member of the Doukhobor sect.

Tories Pick Ad Man

OTTAWA (CP)—Appointment of Dalton K. Camp, 42-year-old Toronto advertising executive, as chairman of the national organization committee of the Progressive Conservative party was announced Monday night by Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

As chief organizer of the Conservative party, Mr. Camp succeeds Senator Allister Gurnett, who has been the party's national director since 1957.

Mr. Camp, a native of Woodstock, N.B., has a long record of service with the Conservative party. Federally and provincially.

Vital Information

Missing Luggage in Unionist's Suite

OTTAWA (CP)—Two briefcases containing confidential information relating to the Norris marine inquiry disappeared Sunday night and later turned up in the hotel suite of Seafarers' International Union chief Hal C. Banks. It was learned Monday.

Mr. Banks told reporters Monday it was all a "mixup." He said luggage belonging to commission counsel Marc Lalonde and an unidentified woman was taken to his hotel suite by error when he arrived here by train from Montreal.

A reliable source said the two briefcases belonging to Mr. Lalonde were lost for about three hours altogether. They were traced to Mr. Banks' suite at the Lord Elgin Hotel by CNR police, who were asked by Mr. Lalonde to investigate.

Mr. Banks, a key witness before the federal inquiry headed by Mr. Justice T. G. Norris of Vancouver into shipping and labor strife on the Great Lakes, said he travelled to Ottawa in the same parlor car with Mr. Lalonde.

Mr. Banks said luggage was taken off the parlor car all at once and he blamed CNR stewards for misdirecting some pieces.

Before Mr. Norris, Mr. Banks admitted Monday he tried to make a deal with the Cuban government late in 1961 to get eight strike-bound Canadian freighters sailing again.

The 54-year-old union chief said the SIU is willing to sail the still-stalled ships "for anybody" — as long as they are manned by Canadian crews at Canadian wages.

The eight ships were tied up in Halifax by CN Steamships after an unsuccessful SIU strike in 1957. Later, the ships were sold to Cuba for $2,000,000 but were never put into operation.

Mr. Banks also admitted Canada Steamship Lines planned to shift its entire Canadian-flag fleet to Bermuda registry in 1961 to save $98,000,000 annually in taxes and his union agreed to support the transfer.

Norris SIU Hearing

At first he called runaway ships those that take to a foreign flag to escape taxation, maintenance costs, provisioning costs, wages and scales.

Confronted with a statement he made in 1961 about CSL's plan to escape $98,000,000 in taxes, Mr. Banks shifted his definition to bring Canadian wages and manning scales to the top.

Mr. Justice Norris asked if the CSL ships were to be "guinea pigs."

"That is right," said Mr. Banks, explaining the transfer was contemplated as a means of bringing "the vastness of the tax problem" to the attention of Ottawa.

School, Staff Accept Contract

DUNCAN — Cowichan school board and Local 1-80 IWA—bargaining for 48 outside employees of the Cowichan school district—have agreed to accept a proposal from a department of labor conciliation officer.

A two-year contract will be signed in the near future. The formula is a nine per cent wage increase during the two years, plus upward job rate adjustments.

Both principals agreed to give any accrued sick leave pay to retiring employees according to the time of their service: five years to 10 years, 30 days; 10 to 15 years, 60 days; 15 to 20 years, 120 days.

HOLIDAY PAY

Employees also will receive the accrued holiday pay of the year of retirement.

Other changes in the new contract are: The establishment of departments within the employees' group; occasional meetings of employees and school board representatives to discuss working conditions or other items concerning the contract.

Sointula

Robbery, Cash Linked

VANCOUVER — Police have seized $16,000 from a Vancouver bank account in connection with a $7,000 safe-cracking at Sointula on Vancouver Island Dec. 21.

This was disclosed Monday as James Donald Cripps, 28, and Cecil A. Whitmore, 21, year-old Sointula waitress, appeared in Burnaby police court charged with breaking and entering the Sointula Co-Op store.

They were remanded to appear in Alert Bay police court Jan. 22.

Police said the seized bank account money would be part of the crown evidence in the case.

Quadra and Market

Labor All Set For New Hall

By DON MATHESON

Tenders have been called for construction of a new home for Victoria labor unions at a site on Quadra at Market.

The modern split-level building would provide union offices, meeting rooms, rental offices and an auditorium.

Long planned to replace the aged labor council offices at 615 Pandora, the new building will be financed partly by union members themselves.

BIDS IN FEB. 1

Director E. T. Staley of the Victoria Building Co-operative Union, which owns the Pandora building, said the tenders are returnable Feb. 1.

Tentative financing arrangements have been completed, he said, and "providing the members put in for shares, then we're all set."

He said the union must sell $20,000 in shares in the co-operative to go with funds already on hand.

SELL SHARES FIRST

Once the shares are sold, then financing arrangements for the rest of the cost of the building will become effective. Cost of the new building is believed to be in the area of $150,000, but will depend on tenders.

Present labor council building on Pandora will not be sold until the new building is completed.

"We've had several offers,"

Parking Trade Slows

Signs of construction out-slow are deterring use of city's unfinished $450,000 View Street parking lot, a parking commission spokesman said yesterday. Lot averaged $100 a day during Christmas rush but take has tapered off during slow shopping month of January. All 190 parking spaces should be complete by month's end, the official said after which lot should pay its way.

Nanaimo Roundup

Hospital, Schools Suffer Power Cut

NANAIMO — Ice-covered power line conductors fused and caused an eight-hour power outage affecting schools and the Nanaimo regional hospital in the northern section of the Nanaimo district early Monday.

The hospital's standby power system went into automatic operation when the power failed. Three elementary schools and the Brannan Lake industrial school also were affected, along with hundreds of private homes. Brannan Lake school used auxiliary power.

The outage also shut off water supplies in areas where water is electrically pumped from main supply lines.

NANAIMO — Oscar Peterson was reported in satisfactory condition in hospital Monday after lying helpless in an icy field with a broken leg for three hours late Saturday. His cries were finally heard by a passerby.

NANAIMO — Police said motorist Gerald McGladdey made an illegal left turn off the highway to an auto dealer's lot, contrary to a posted sign.

But Magistrate Lionel Bevan-Potts said no, even though McGladdey pleaded guilty Monday.

He gave the motorist a suspended sentence, saying: "This sign should be moved. In my opinion it is in the wrong place."

"A motorist cannot see the sign until half way through his turn."

NANAIMO — Huge quantities of herring and many young salmon will be taken by Japanese gillnetters if Canada agrees to relinquish control of west coast fishing, says an official of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union here.

Young Man Held In Extortion Case

A young man was charged last night with attempted extortion in connection with telephone calls threatening a prominent retired businessman here.

City detectives made an arrest yesterday afternoon near the lotteries in Beacon Hill Park where $2,500 was to be placed for the extortionist. Detectives arrived on the scene an hour early.

PHONE CALLS

The delivery was scheduled for 5:30 p.m. The businessman was asked to bring the cash in person.

In a series of phone calls during the past 10 days, police said the businessman was threatened by what the caller claimed were tape recordings of his voice, and pictures.

Fulton All-Out for Tories

By TERRY HAMMOND
Colonist Legislative Reporter

Provincial Conservative leadership contender Dave Fulton told a Victoria press conference yesterday he envisions a quick leap to power for B.C. Tories.

The shoo-in candidate for Tory leadership said he has no fear of launching a partial party resurgence which might only serve to hand a general election victory to the NDP.

The economic and political climate of B.C. is such that people are looking for a positive alternative to Social Credit and socialism, he said, and added that the party will have a full slate of first-class candidates in B.C.'s next election.

The federal works minister said he decided to accept the leadership "because of evidence the province is suffering."

He said he has personal knowledge of the reluctance of some major investors to spend money in B.C. "because of lack of confidence in the British Columbia government."

He charged the government with delaying ratification of the Columbia River development treaty and added "there is a very real danger it will be lost."

He said his stand on the Columbia was unchanged and B.C. had broken faith with the

On Veterans' Hospital

Glasseo Figures 'Inaccurate'

Criticism of the Glasseo royal commission report for "an inaccurate statement" about Victoria's Veterans' Hospital was registered yesterday by John S. Adam, assistant district administrator of the department of veterans' affairs, Victoria.

Mr. Adam charged the report's statement that "there is a veterans' hospital in the city—at present 80 per cent occupied by chronic and domiciliary patients"—was false. "At no time since the hospital opened its doors in 1947 has the number of domiciliary cases exceeded 125, or 41.6 per cent of the hospital strength," said Mr. Adam.

"A review of in-patient days for the past year indicates that 34 per cent were active treatment cases, while the remaining 46 per cent were composed of 40 per cent domiciliary cases and six per cent hospitalized for chronic or medical and socio-economic reasons," said Mr. Adam.

"It is not known from what source the figures were obtained, but there would appear to be a discrepancy between the figures in the report and those existing in the hospital's statistical records."

There is a market for such power, he added.

He said he has solutions for many of B.C.'s problems but that at the present time he was not ready to make statements of policy.

Up-Island Help Indicated For Publicity

A co-operative spirit exists up-island toward impending formation of a new agency to publicize Vancouver Island, says the commissioner of the Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau.

Commissioner William Hawkins said several days travelling between Duncan and Campbell River meeting tourist industry operators and others before the founding convention in Nanaimo next Friday at the Vancouver Island Publicity Bureau.

The Vancouver Island bureau is to take over from the Victoria and Island bureau the job of attracting tourists to the island.

Allowance in Budgets

Some up-island municipal governments have made allowances in their 1963 provisional budgets for grants to the new bureau, Mr. Hawkins said.

Main business of the founding meeting Friday will be election of a 12-man board of directors for the new bureau and election by directors of their executive.

In electing directors, Mr. Hawkins said, one vote will be given to each of:

1. The mayor, reeve or village commission chairman of each municipality of Region A of the province, or his duly appointed deputy;

2. The president of each Region A Chamber of Commerce or Board of Trade, or his deputy;

Museum Group Plans Meeting

The Maritime Museum Society will meet at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the wardroom of HMCS Naden.

Norman Turner will speak on the history of the early fishing fleet and early towboats. Refreshments will be served.

Asked if he would persist with the Pearce under existing conditions and with financing available, he replied, "I don't think I can answer a hypothetical question of that sort."

The major problem in B.C. today is the need for restoration of the political and economic climate and restoration of confidence between government and the people to create sound, vigorous progress."

He said he has solutions for many of B.C.'s problems but that at the present time he was not ready to make statements of policy.

and not had offers either," Mr. Staley said, "but the problem has been to carry on occupancy."

Plans are to sell the building later, use some of the funds for furniture and fixtures for the new building, and use the rest of the money to reduce the mortgage.

The Pandora site is quite desirable, as it overlooks the planned civic square project.

Annual meeting of the co-operative is Feb. 1, three days after the bids are returnable. Mr. Staley said he would hope to have a contract for the new building awarded by Feb. 15.

Douglas, Government

One-Way Plan Mooney Goal

By IAN STREET

Ald. Millard Mooney has set his sights on removal of the traffic bottleneck at Fountain Circle and a start on a one-way street system by the end of 1963.

The alderman appointed last week to head city traffic committee will meet department heads at city hall today to discuss his program.

"This is going to be a big year for traffic decisions," he said in an interview yesterday.

WANTS QUICK START

"We can't get started too soon, as far as I'm concerned, I'd like to get started on one-way streets and get rid of the roundabout on Douglas by the end of this year."

The fact that a metropolitan traffic study is likely to be carried out here this summer, said Ald. Mooney, should not deter city council.

"I don't think this is any reason to delay a decision to proceed with one-way traffic on Douglas and Government," he said. This in turn will allow the city to install traffic lights at Fountain Circle to regulate traffic flow.

MONEY ON HAND

The sum of $28,000 has lain untouched in city coffers for the past six years, Ald. Mooney said, since it was appropriated by public works committee for just such a program.

"I know there will be a lot of opposition," the chairman said. "But I believe that even a beginning of one-way traffic will prove a boon for all merchants because it will enable their customers to get downtown easier."

Detention Plan Favored

The intermunicipal committee has recommended acceptance of a "very fair" agreement for construction and operation of the new Greater Victoria juvenile detention home. Mayor R. B. Wilson said yesterday.

The key so far as the city is concerned is the provision that all costs be shared according to the accepted intermunicipal formula which would be revised from time to time as population and assessments change, the mayor said.

Under the agreement the city would also receive 10 per cent of the annual operating budget for carrying out administration.

BRIEF MEETING
City council yesterday held a brief special meeting until preliminary approval was given to the bylaw regarding the agreement. It will get final reading at the regular council meeting Thursday and then must go to the cabinet for formal approval.

The three other municipalities are also expected to approve the necessary bylaws in the next few days.

Weekend Crashes Injure One

LADYSMITH — Two separate accidents over the past weekend sent a Lake Cowichan man to hospital with minor head injuries, police said.

The first traffic mishap, a three-car crash on Bayview, involved drivers Harry Marshall of Ladysmith, Stan Francis of Lake Cowichan and Mrs. Elene Erickson of Ladysmith.

The accident occurred when Marshall stopped to discharge a passenger and a car driven by Francis collided with the rear and careened into the path of another car driven by Mrs. Erickson.

The second collision involved Dr. John J. Tassin of Duncan and Louis G. Gray of Ladysmith.

JFK Faces Trouble On Tax Cut

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy asked the U.S. Congress Monday for an unprecedented $13,500,000,000 tax slash to help assure cold war victory against a Communist empire in "disarray."

The president's proposed tax cut would be accompanied by a slash in all federal spending except for defence and space.

TROUBLE?

First reaction indicated the president will have trouble convincing the divided congressmen of the desirability of the need-size tax cut but of its economic wisdom and feasibility.

Applause broke out many times as he delivered his third state-of-the-union message to a joint session of Senate and House of Representatives but handclapping for the tax-revamping package was only scattered. It came mostly from the Democrats—and not from all of them.

NOT SOW

Many congressmen have called for economies in office any tax cuts, but Kennedy took the position that this cannot be done now. He predicted, however, that his plan would lead in time to "a balanced budget in a balanced full employment economy."

The tax reduction, highest in history, would become effective in three annual stages, between 1963 and 1965. About $11,000,000,000 of the savings would go to individual taxpayers; the rest to corporations. The first-step reductions would take effect this year and would be at an annual rate of $6,000,000,000—but the total reduction for 1963 would

Car Falls 100 Feet Driver Still Baffled

A man who survived a 100-foot drop on West Coast Road Saturday night told the Colonist yesterday he couldn't describe exactly what happened.

"There wasn't much time to think about anything," said Robert McGeachy, 37.

Jordan River Hotel, a miner at Cowichan Copper Mine. His car went out of control about a mile east of Point No. Point, plunged down the bank and was totally demolished.

Mr. McGeachy escaped without a scratch. "It took me 10 minutes to climb back to the road," he said.

Mr. McGeachy was on his way to pick up a friend in Victoria when the crash occurred. They were going on midnight shift at the mine.

After a three-minute wait he caught a lift back to Jordan River and called police.

Speed Reduced Pupils Return

Parents of Mount Benson School pupils decided last night to send their children back to school after Highways Minister Gagliardi cut the speed limit to 40 miles an hour on the Island Highway at Jingle Pot Road in Wellington where a child was killed by a truck recently.

His decision was announced hours after a delegation of Wellington parents emerged from a two-hour meeting with Mr. Gagliardi, disappointed that they failed to get approval of a school crossing underpass.

ALREADY CUT

The speed limit on this stretch of road was recently reduced to 50 miles an hour from 60.

Mr. Gagliardi also announced a highways department employee will operate a push-button signal light at the Jingle Pot crossing for two weeks, and double "no passing" lines will be painted on both sides of the intersection.

FAILURE

Frank Murphy, spokesman for the Wellington group and father of a youngster who must use the controversial crossing, said the delegation wanted an underpass and anything short of that was a failure.

In an unanimous decision the parents passed two resolutions.

Born 1800 Died 1963

MOSCOW (UPI)—Mahmoud Vardan, whom Tass news agency said was possibly the world's oldest man, died Monday in the Syrian city of Hama at 163 years of age.

The minister said from all information he has received on the Naimo accident it was in no way attributable to the type of school crossing.

Mr. Gagliardi, father of two boys, asked if he allowed them on the highway with bicycles at the age of six, replied: "If I did that I'd want my head examined."

Loud Red Hurrah

EAST BERLIN (Reuters)—Soviet Premier Khrushchev arrived here Monday night to attend the East German Communist party congress opening today and declared that the Communist wall dividing Berlin represented Communist "success."

He added "I shall shout a loud hurrah when capitalism is buried."

Khrushchev bounded to the station platform and gripped Walter Ulbricht by the hand. Khrushchev grinned broadly and embraced Ulbricht five times.

The party congress was widely expected to be a showdown with Communist China over ideology and foreign policy differences.

Khrushchev said that since his last visit three years ago the Berlin wall had been built and he added: "This is our success."

Khrushchev then mentioned West German Chancellor Adenauer and contrasted the "aging" system of capitalism with "sprightly" socialism.

"I shall shout a loud hurrah when capitalism is buried."

"We will not have a war in order to bring the Socialist system of society to another country because we think that this is an internal matter for each country."

Triple Nuclear Rule Norstad Proposal

WASHINGTON (CP)—Gen. Lauris Norstad Monday night proposed a North Atlantic nuclear force under the operational control of Britain, France and United States with each country retaining physical custody over their contributed warheads.

In an apparent effort to end French opposition to a NATO nuclear force, the recently-retired NATO supreme commander said his proposal should go "some distance" towards meeting the special requirements of France, "since it recognizes the special position of the three NATO nations possessing nuclear capability."

DEMANDS

French President de Gaulle, while rejecting the American-proposed Polaris submarine multilateral force, has demanded that Britain and the United States recognize his "equal voice" in controlling and directing NATO.

Norstad, famed at a farewell dinner attended by NATO ambassadors and high U.S. officials, said the time has come to grasp the nuclear problem, particularly in relation to the need for Europeans for a voice and influence in NATO nuclear decision-making.

"I believe it is the desire of almost all NATO nations that the authority over the nuclear capability which supports NATO defence plans should be vested in the alliance itself," Norstad said. "To meet this desire, the nuclear weapons deployed for the purpose of giving reality and substance to the NATO principles should be wholly commented to the alliance."

BERLIN (UPI)—East Germany Monday purged its economic planning chief in an attempt to find a scapegoat for the nation's economic crisis. He is Karl Mewis, 55, a close friend of party chief Walter Ulbricht.

Labor Looks at SIU But Banks Must Go

OTTAWA (CP)—Some top Canadian labor leaders are being sounded out informally on a deal to get the Seafarers' International Union back into the Canadian Labor Congress, reliable sources said Monday.

The proposal involves the early departure of American-born Hal Banks from the leadership of the union, with three "monitors" taking over control on a six-month trial to reform the SIU.

Mr. Banks, a key witness before the federal inquiry headed by Mr. Justice T. G. Norris of Vancouver into shipping and labor strife on the Great Lakes, said he travelled to Ottawa in the same parlor car with Mr. Lakeland.

Norris SIU Hearing

Missing Luggage in Unionist's Suite

OTTAWA (CP)—Two briefcases containing confidential information relating to the Norris inquiry disappeared Sunday night and later turned up in the hotel suite of Seafarers' International Union chief Hal C. Banks, it was learned Monday.

Mr. Banks told reporters Monday it was a "mixup." He said luggage belonging to commission counsel Marc Lakeland and an unidentified woman was taken to his hotel suite by error when he arrived here by train from Montreal.

A reliable source said the two briefcases belonging to Mr. Lakeland were lost for about three hours altogether. They were traced to Mr. Banks' suite at the Lord Elgin Hotel by CNR police, who were asked by Mr. Lakeland to investigate.

strike-bound Canadian freighters sailing again.

The 34-year-old union chief said the SIU is willing to sail the still-stalled ships "for anybody" — as long as they are manned by Canadian crews at Canadian wages.

The eight ships were tied up in Halifax by CN Steamships after an unsuccessful SIU strike in 1957. Later, the ships were sold to Cuba for $2,000,000 but were never put into operation.

Mr. Banks also admitted Canada Steamship Lines planned to shift its entire Canadian-flag fleet to Bermuda registry in 1961 to save $98,000,000 annually in taxes and his union agreed to support the transfer.

At first he called runaway ships those that take to a foreign flag to escape taxation, maintenance costs, provisioning costs, wages and scales.

Confronted with a statement he made in 1961 about CSL's plan to escape $98,000,000 in taxes, Mr. Banks shifted his definition to bring Canadian wages and manning scales to the top.

Mr. Justice Norris asked if the CSL ships were to be "guinea pigs."

"That is right," said Mr. Banks, explaining the transfer was contemplated as a means of bringing "the vastness of the tax problem" to the attention of Ottawa.
